HESS FLIGHT SEEN AS RIFT AMONG NAZIS

LONDON DENIES BERLIN CLAIM DESERTION OF HITLER DEPUTY WAS ACT OF A "DERANGED" MAN

By the Associated Press

German propaganda today described the melodramatic 800-mile escape flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland as the act of a man "mentally deranged because of physical illness," while elsewhere speculation arose that the Nazi deputy party leader might divulge information which would strike a serious blow at Adolf Hitler's war plans.

As British foreign office experts questioned Hess in a Scottish hospital, Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper told rejoicing Britons:

"I can only say that his arrival here shows the first breach in the Nazi party that has occurred since Hitler murdered a huge bloc of his own followers on June 30, 1933."

Duff Cooper referred to the notorious "blood purge" in which Hess helped execute Hitler's orders.

Countering German assertions that Hess was mentally ill, the British pointed out that for a "madman" he made an adroit job of flying the 800 miles from Germany to Scotland and bailing out when he failed to sight a landing place for his Messerschmitt in the darkness. The plane's fighting guns were not loaded.

An official Nazi party communique declared:

"Hess appears to have lived under the hallucination that he was still able to bring about an understanding between Germany and England through personal action with old English acquaintances."

The British said flatly that Hitler's long-time boon friend and No. 2 choice for the fuehrership in the event of Hitler's death brought no suggestion of peace.

The purpose of his flight remained as deep a mystery as ever, although the British seized on the incident as evidence of a rift in Nazi leadership.

Amid a flood of rumors, word circulated at Glasgow that Hess brought important information about the German air force which he wanted to communicate to the British.

Authoritative quarters in London said Hess' flight from the Reich was the act of a sane man and added cryptically that it was carried out in defiance of German authority.

These quarters said Hess brought no peace terms, and declared Hitler's deputy knew that if he had gone to a neutral country instead of parachuting onto a Scottish moor—as he did last Saturday night—he would have been in danger of being "bumped off" by Nazi agents.

Photographs of the swift Messerschmidt fighting plane in which Hess flew from Augsburg, Germany, showed the tail was punctured by machine-gun bullets—apparently inflicted either by German or British pursuers.

The plane, which crashed as Hess dropped to safety with a broken ankle, was wrecked, the engine half-buried in the ground.

British officials said that Hess, lying in a Glasgow hospital, had been "positively identified" by Ivone Kirkpatrick, former British charge d'affaires in Berlin, and that he had been examined by doctors and found sane.

A German spokesman, declared that "the incident was extremely tragic to Hess and his family personally and will not have the slightest influence on German military or foreign political policy."

Hess left a wife and child in Germany in setting off on his fantastic venture, just six days after he sat side by side with Hitler at a meeting of the German Reichstag.

Berlin quarters said Hess suffered "hallucinations" as a result of a long-standing stomach disorder, affliction of the nerves and consequent sleeplessness.

The pitchfork-armed Scottish farmer who saw Hess drop out of the skies and afterwards offered him tea described his prisoner as polite and gentlemanly, chatting calmly while he waited for authorities.

A Nazi party statement, declaring Hess was mentally deranged said he knew of numerous "peace proposals of the fuehrer which came from deep in his heart" better than anyone else.

While this seemed to lend credence to the theory that Hess' mission was to sound out the British on a possible end of the 20-months-old war, the Nazi communique went on quickly to comment:

"It also is imaginable that, in the last analysis, Hess was intentionally lured into a trap by the British."

In addition to rejoicing over their prize prisoner of the war, the British found good news in an admiralty announcement that British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses in the "battle of the Atlantic" during April were the lowest in 11 months—a total

COMMONS HAS A DISCUSSION OVER SITUATION

London, May 13—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced in the House of Commons today that a further statement would be made shortly about the surprising flight of Rudolph Hess to Scotland.

Replying to a request from Laborite H. B. Lees-Smith for a statement concerning Hess, Churchill said:

"I have nothing to add at present to the statement issued last night by His Majesty's government, but obviously a further statement will be made in the near future regarding the flight to this country of this very high and important Nazi leader."

Laborite John James Lawson asked that "in view of German propaganda statements on the wireless that Hess was suffering from mental instability, has Mr. Churchill any information upon that point; is that particular disease limited to the chief of German propagandists?"

Churchill replied: "Obviously I have no information at the moment, but if further examination is made—." The rest of the sentence was lost by members jumping up to put supplementary questions.

Conservative Vyvyan Jones asked if Churchill would bear in mind "this gentleman's record of devotion to the vile genius of Europe."

OVERTHROW OF NAZI PARTY IS PREDICTION

Montreal, May 13—(Canadian Press)—The Montreal Herald quoted Otto Strasser, leader of the anti-Nazi Black Front, in a copyright interview today as saying the flight of Rudolf Hess seemed to indicate that the German army chiefs and Hermann Goering seek to overthrow the Nazi party.

"Within one hour of the accession of Goering to power Goebbels and Heinrich Himmler would be shot dead," Strasser, a founder of the National Socialist party, was quoted as saying:

"That is why Hess, in my opinion, fled for his life."

BROADCASTERS' ASSOCIATION IN DISAGREEMENT

St. Louis, May 13.—(AP)—The Mutual Broadcasting System, smallest of the three major radio networks, enlivened the convention of National Broadcasters today with a threat to withdraw in a dispute over policy.

This had been rumored since before the annual meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters opened yesterday and was disclosed officially following a five-hour conference of the NAB board of directors last night.

The threatened split resulted from Mutual's claims that NAB executive officers are "not acting in the interest of all elements of the industry."

The board responded with a vote of confidence for its officers and renewed the contract of Neville Miller, president, for a two-year period. This action was regarded by informed leaders as a direct answer to the junior member, which copped the spotlight earlier by announcing an agreement to end its music war with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP), which restricted the use of many hit tunes after December 31.

"It puts the next move directly up to Mutual," declared one leader.

Mutual executives declined immediate comment.

Mutual's disagreement with the NAB was brought to a head by Miller's recent adverse comment on the network's submission to its

Aviation's Graveyard of Alleghenies Gives Up Another of Its Preys When Charred Ship of Prominent New Yorkers Is Found

HITS MOUNTAIN TOP

By FRANKLIN BANKER

Lewistown, May 13. (AP)—Aviation's graveyard of the Alleghenies has given up another of its preys, this time the charred wreckage of a plane in which a socially prominent New York couple crashed to death in dense fog.

Horribly mangled bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brewster were found late yesterday amid splintered pieces of the $25,000 ship in which they started out four days ago on a cross-country pleasure jaunt.

Spurred by a $1,000 reward, some 70 planes were hunting the missing couple when an All-American airmail pilot made the discovery on his regular flight. Searchers were directed to the remote scene by air.

The Brewster Beechcraft had struck the top of the 1,800-foot Shade Mountain 25 miles south of this central Pennsylvania town, snapping off tree tops, plowing up nearly 100 feet of ground and finally bursting into flames.

Coroner Charles W. Straub, declaring the deaths accidental, said the ship would have cleared the treacherous mountain with 150 feet additional altitude. He fixed time of the crash at 5:30 p. m. Friday.

Chief Executive Cancels Third Press Conference In Succession Today as National Broadcasting Company Completes Plans For Transmitting "Fireside Chat" Two Weeks From Today Over Virtually World - Wide Broadcast

POSTPONEMENT IS CAUSE OF COMMENTS

Washington, May 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt cancelled his third press conference in succession today but increased the number of appointments he was keeping as a convalescent in his White House quarters.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said that "he is in great shape and everything is o. k." but that Mr. Roosevelt's doctor thought it wise for him to remain in the White House proper at least another day.

The day's major engagement was with Rear Admiral E. J. King, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, who is in charge of American patrol activities in the Atlantic.

The National Broadcasting Company said it expected that Mr. Roosevelt's fireside chat at 9:30 p. m. eastern standard time, May 27 would be "very extensively short-waved, being virtually a world-wide broadcast."

Plans had been completed for transmitting the president's speech had it been delivered tomorrow night, as originally scheduled, and now with more time to make arrangements, even wider distribution will likely be arranged, company officials said.

Washington, May 13—(AP)—With a Senate showdown approaching on the convoy question, Senator Pepper (D-Fla) urged today that the United States undertake to help assure the safe delivery of all supplies to Britain, regardless of the country from which they were shipped.

DRAFT CHANGE IS OPPOSED IN CONGRESS

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Declaring the selective service headquarters is "not going to cram anything down our throats," Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House military committee called today for a thorough study of a proposal to defer older registrants from the call to arms.

May advocated a "go slow" policy on all proposed changes in the selective service act, saying that his committee wished to investigate operation and administration of the law thus far before approving any change.

Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey, deputy draft director, yesterday recommended an amendment which would permit the president to order deferments by age groups without removing the liability of those deferred from eventual military service.

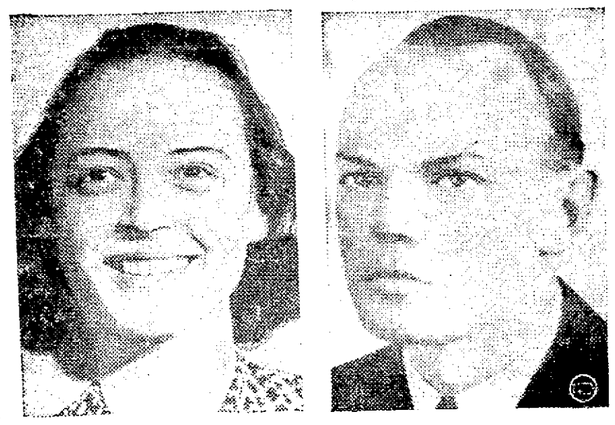

Hershey, writing to Speaker Rayburn, did not suggest an age at which group deferment might start, but informed officials said there had been considerable official discussion of postponing the draft law indicated that congress might not make any change in the status prior to the expected see-

FLORIDA NEGRO TWICE TAKEN BY LYNCHING MOB

Survives First Attempt to Kill Him Only to be Hauled From Ambulance Taking Him to Hospital; Body Found Riddled With Bullets

SLAYERS NOT KNOWN

Quincy, Fla., May 13—(AP)—A. C. Williams, a 22-year-old negro charged with assaulting a 12-year-old white girl, was found shot to death today, several hours after a band of men seized him in a second lynching attempt when the first had failed.

"We found him on his back, where he apparently had been dropped by bullets fired into his body," Sheriff M. P. Luten said.

No arrests have been made in the case, and Sheriff Luten said "we have virtually no clues to work on."

The slain man's body was found on a bridge over a creek five miles north of here.

The first lynching attempt came in the evening when four white men armed with pistols locked Officer Dan Davis in a cell at the Gadsden county jail and took Williams with them.

Williams was found shortly after midnight at a negro residence near here. Sheriff Luten said, "with eight or ten bullet wounds in his body" and badly beaten about the head.

Luten said "undoubtedly an attempt was made to lynch him" and his attackers left him for dead. When a physician here said Williams had a fairly good chance to recover, the prisoner was put in an ambulance to be taken to a hospital at Tallahassee, about 25 miles west of Quincy.

Luten said he assumed the ne-

MAN SLAIN BY STEPDAUGHTER

Pittsburgh, May 13. (AP)—A 46-year-old automobile salesman was stabbed to death early today, Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan said, by the victim's 17-year-old stepdaughter.

Monaghan identified the salesman as William E. Burton and the stepdaughter as Avis Marie Feller, Schenley high school senior and daughter of Mrs. Mona Marie Burton, 38, night telephone operator in an apartment building.

The inspector said the girl, held without formal charge, told him she stabbed her stepfather with a five-inch butcher knife because he had scolded and threatened her mother.

Burton began quarreling with his wife, Monaghan related, because she returned to her east end home several hours after her work as a telephone operator was ended. The girl claimed she had been asleep on a daybed and awoke as her stepfather seized her mother by the throat.

Mrs. Burton, a divorcee, married Burton four years ago.

Diplomatic Circles in Washington Agree That Melodramatic Landing of the Fuehrer's Number Two Leader to Britain Will be Greatest Blow to Morale Of German People, No Matter Explanation Accepted

SEEDS OF DOUBT IN STORIES FROM BRITAIN

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Diplomatic circles agreed today that the melodramatic flight of Rudolf Hess to Britain would be a great blow to the morale of the German people, no matter what explanation they accept.

Both the official German and the British accounts of the war's strangest episode, it was said, contain elements that can hardly be reassuring to the average man in the Third Reich.

These sources reasoned as follows:

The German version speaks of Hess's "failing health for years" and raises doubts as to his sanity, at least at the time he decamped. Inasmuch as Hess continued active in important government and Nazi party affairs almost to the end, the inevitable question arises as to Hess's mental condition for some time past.

In short, the German people may well wonder how long important affairs have been in the hands of a man of dubious mental stability.

The British account shows different seeds of doubt. It represents Hess, long one of Hitler's closest associates, as deserting der fuehrer at the high tide of victory to surrender voluntarily in Great Britain. And it stresses his complete sanity.

Accepted in this light, Hess's flight can only dumbfound the average German, it was said. There never had been any question of Hess' loyalty to Hitler in the past. He had stuck to de fuehrer during the most discouraging days of the Nazi movement. Why this amazing turnabout? Did it mean he saw defeat ahead for the reich? Had he lost faith in Hitler?

Diplomatic quarters here were frankly bewildered as to the complete significance of the entire matter. Apparently authoritative reports reaching the capital, however, agreed on three points; that Hess's identity had been established beyond doubt; that he was per-

Strange Parachutist First Amazes and Then Frightens Scottish Farmer Making Capture

Says His "Pitchfork Prisoner" Seemed a "Man of Culture" But "We Thought He Was Just Another German Airman"

WOUNDS SUPERFICIAL

By ERNEST AGNEW

Glasgow, March 13.—(AP)—The polite parachutist who surrendered cheerfully to a Scottish farmer armed with a pitchfork has turned out to be Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi and now Britain's No. 1 prisoner.

He landed unarmed, gossiped for an hour with the farmer, declined tea with his captor's family, then went along with officials for treatment of an ankle break sustained in landing.

A Glasgow physician who examined the prisoner said Hess had with him a stimulant "which he said he was in the habit of carrying when making flights in case he had a heart attack or had to make a parachute landing."

The physician described his preliminary examination as superficial, adding that no ailments were disclosed.

David McLean, the Scottish farmer, said his "pitchfork prisoner" seemed a "man of culture" but "we thought he was just another German airman."

He said he heard a plane roaring overhead, ran from his farmhouse, and saw the plane burst into flames 200 yards away.

Senator Davis, in an Unannounced Visit to Indiantown Gap, Commends Soldiers' Morale

By DONALD ST. JOHN

Indiantown Gap, May 13.—(AP) Soldiers of Pennsylvania's 28th Division set out on a series of regimental maneuvers today after hearing U. S. Senator James J. Davis [illegible] assert their training would preserve peace by making the United States so strong "no nation on earth will force a war [illegible]."

Mr. Davis in camp unexpectedly yesterday on the state's senior senatorial [illegible] brief inspection of the military reservation.

He said he was impressed with the [illegible]ness and kindly spirit of the officers toward the enlisted men but added the reservation had the "discipline that is needed to make an invincible military force."

He said the inspection tour indicated, however, a need for better roads and other improvements. Observing that the top surface of the camp's miles of dirt road "is blowing away in high winds," Davis said additional surface treatment of the roads seemed necessary as an economy move.

A request by Major General Edward Martin, post commandant, for funds with which to construct a huge lake on the reservation grounds also met with the senator's approval. The lake would provide additional recreational and swimming facilities, as well as a site for the engineers' bridge-building activities.

The Brewster Beechcraft had struck the top of the 1,800-foot Shade Mountain 25 miles south of this central Pennsylvania town, snapping off tree tops, plowing up nearly 100 feet of ground and finally bursting into flames.

Coroner Charles W. Straub, declaring the deaths accidental, said the ship would have cleared the treacherous mountain with 150 feet additional altitude. He fixed time of the crash at 5:30 p. m. Friday.

Chief Executive Cancels Third Press Conference In Succession Today as National Broadcasting Company Completes Plans For Transmitting "Fireside Chat" Two Weeks From Today Over Virtually World - Wide Broadcast

POSTPONEMENT IS CAUSE OF COMMENTS

Washington, May 13—(AP)—President Roosevelt cancelled his third press conference in succession today but increased the number of appointments he was keeping as a convalescent in his White House quarters.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, asid that "he is in great shape and everything is o. k." but that Mr. Roosevelt's doctor thought it wise for him to remain in the White House proper at least another day.

The day's major engagement was with Rear Admiral E. J. King, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, who is in charge of American patrol activities in the Atlantic.

The National Broadcasting Company said it expected that Mr. Roosevelt's fireside chat at 9:30 p. m. eastern standard time, May 27 would be "very extensively short-waved, being virtually a world-wide broadcast."

Plans had been completed for transmitting the president's speech had it been delivered tomorrow night, as originally scheduled, and now with more time to make arrangements, even wider distribution will likely be arranged, company officials said.

Washington, May 13—(AP)—With a Senate showdown approaching on the convoy question, Senator Pepper (D-Fla) urged today that the United States undertake to help assure the safe delivery of all supplies to Britain, regardless of the country from which they were shipped.

But, capital circles wondered just what Secretary Knox meant

DRAFT CHANGE IS OPPOSED IN CONGRESS

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Declaring the selective service headquarters is "not going to cram anything down our throats," Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House military committee called today for a thorough study of a proposal to defer older registrants from the call to arms.

May advocated a "go slow" policy on all proposed changes in the selective service act, saying that his committee wished to investigate operation and administration of the law thus far before approving any change.

Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey, deputy draft director, yesterday recommended an amendment which would permit the president to order deferments by age groups without removing the liability of those deferred from eventual military service.

Hershey, writing to Speaker Rayburn, did not suggest an age at which group deferment might start, but informed officials said there had been considerable official discussion of postponing the train-draft law indicated that congress might not make any change in the status prior to the expected sec-

FLORIDA NEGRO TWICE TAKEN BY LYNCHING MOB

SLAYERS NOT KNOWN

Quincy, Fla., May 13—(AP)—A. C. Williams, a 22-year-old negro charged with assaulting a 12-year-old white girl, was found shot to death today, several hours after a band of men seized him in a second lynching attempt when the first had failed.

"We found him on his back, where he apparently had been dropped by bullets fired into his body," Sheriff M. P. Luten said.

No arrests have been made in the case, and Sheriff Luten said "we have virtually no clues to work on."

The slain man's body was found on a bridge over a creek five miles north of here.

The first lynching attempt came in the evening when four white men armed with pistols locked Officer Dan Davis in a cell at the Gadsden county jail and took Williams with them.

Williams was found shortly after midnight at a negro residence near here, Sheriff Luten said, "with eight or ten bullet wounds in his body" and badly beaten about the head.

Luten said "undoubtedly an attempt was made to lynch him" and his attackers left him for dead. When a physician here said Williams had a fairly good chance to recover, the prisoner was put in an ambulance to be taken to a hospital at Tallahassee, about 25 miles west of Quincy.

Luten said he assumed the ne-

MAN SLAIN BY STEPDAUGHTER

Pittsburgh, May 13.—(AP)—A 46-year-old automobile salesman was stabbed to death early today, Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan said, by the victim's 17-year-old stepdaughter.

Monaghan identified the salesman as William E. Burton and the stepdaughter as Avis Marie Feller, Schenley high school senior and daughter of Mrs. Mona Marie Burton, 38, night telephone operator in an apartment building.

The inspector said the girl, held without formal charge, told him she stabbed her stepfather with a five-inch butcher knife because he had scolded and threatened her mother.

Burton began quarreling with his wife, Monaghan related, because she returned to her east end home several hours after her work as a telephone operator was ended. The girl claimed she had been asleep on a daybed and awoke as her stepfather seized her mother by the throat.

Mrs. Burton, a divorcee, married Burton four years ago.

Diplomatic Circles in Washington Agree That Melodramatic Landing of the Fuehrer's Number Two Leader to Britain Will be Greatest Blow to Morale Of German People, No Matter Explanation Accepted

SEEDS OF DOUBT IN STORIES FROM BRITAIN

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Diplomatic circles agreed today that the melodramatic flight of Rudolf Hess to Britain would be a great blow to the morale of the German people, no matter what explanation they accept.

Both the official German and the British accounts of the war's strangest episode, it was said, contain elements that can hardly be reassuring to the average man in the Third Reich.

These sources reasoned as follows:

The German version speaks of Hess's "failing health for years" and raises doubts as to his sanity, at least at the time he decamped. Inasmuch as Hess continued active in important government and Nazi party affairs almost to the end, the inevitable question arises as to Hess's mental condition for some time past.

In short, the German people may well wonder how long important affairs have been in the hands of a man of dubious mental stability.

The British account shows different seeds of doubt. It represents Hess, long one of Hitler's closest associates, as deserting der fuehrer at the high tide of victory to surrender voluntarily in Great Britain. And it stresses his somplete sanity.

Accepted in this light, Hess's flight can only dumbfound the average German, it was said. There never had been any question of Hess' loyalty to Hitler in the past. He had stuck to de fuehrer during the most discouraging days of the Nazi movement. Why this amazing turnabout? Did it mean he saw defeat ahead for the reich? Had he lost faith in Hitler?

Diplomatic quarters here were frankly bewildered as to the complete significance of the entire matter. Apparently authoritative reports reaching the capital, however, agreed on three points; that Hess's identity had been established beyond doubt; that he was per-

LA FOLLETTE SCORES STIMSON AND KNOX

Pittsburgh, May 13.—(AP)—Former Governor Philip La Follette of Wisconsin, demanded at an "America First" rally last night that the president drop from his cabinet Secretaries Stimson and Knox and replace them with two America First leaders, General Robert E. Wood and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

La Follette charged the "two Republican jokers running wild in the New Deal" cabinet were trying "to lure this country into war."

A large crowd, with many standing outside of the northside Carnegie Hall, gave the speaker numerous cheers.

Strange Parachutist First Amazes and Then Frightens Scottish Farmer Making Capture

Says His "Pitchfork Prisoner" Seemed a "Man of Culture" But "We Thought He Was Just Another German Airman"

WOUNDS SUPERFICIAL

By ERNEST AGNEW

Glasgow, March 13.—(AP)—The polite parachutist who surrendered cheerfully to a Scottish farmer armed with a pitchfork has turned out to be Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi and now Britain's No. 1 prisoner.

He landed unarmed, gossiped for an hour with the farmer, declined tea with his captor's family, then went along with officials for treatment of an ankle break sustained in landing.

A Glasgow physician who examined the prisoner said Hess had with him a stimulant "which he said he was in the habit of carrying when making flights in case he had a heart attack or had to make a parachute landing."

The physician described his preliminary examination as superficial, adding that no ailments were disclosed.

David McLean, the Scottish farmer, said his "pitchfork prisoner" seemed a "man of culture" but "we thought he was just another German airman."

He said he heard a plane roaring overhead, ran from his farmhouse, and saw the plane burst into flames 200 yards away.

Senator Davis, in an Unannounced Visit to Indiantown Gap, Commends Soldiers' Morale

By DONALD ST. JOHN

Indiantown Gap, May 13.—(AP)—Soldiers of Pennsylvania's 28th Division set out on a series of regimental maneuvers today after hearing U. S. Senator James J. Davis (R-Pa.) assert their training would preserve peace by making the United States so strong "no nation on earth will force a war upon us."

Arriving in camp unexpectedly yesterday, the state's senior senator made a brief inspection of the military reservation.

He said he was impressed with the "friendliness and kindly spirit of the officers toward the enlisted men," but added the reservation had the "discipline that is needed to make an invincible military force."

He said the inspection tour indicated, however, a need for better roads and other improvements. Observing that the top surface of the camp's miles of dirt road "is blowing away in high winds," Davis said additional surface treatment of the roads seemed necessary as an economy move.

A request by Major General Edward Martin, post commandant, for funds with which to construct a huge lake on the reservation grounds also met with the senator's approval. The lake would provide additional recreational and swimming facilities, as well as a site for the engineers' bridge-building activities.

Measles Quarantine Brings About Change In List of Selectees Here

A change in the list of men who will be sent by Local Draft Board No. 1 on Friday for induction into the U. S. Army under the Selective Service system was announced today.

Because he has never had the measles, Pat Wayne Ferrie, R. D. 1, is quarantined with other members of his family until other children have recovered from the disease. Therefore, he will be unable to report for induction.

In his place will be sent Joseph D. Suter, of 107 Jefferson avenue, a volunteer. Suter's order number is 1684.

All of those who are scheduled to leave Friday afternoon for Pittsburgh for final examinations before being inducted will be guests of the Warren Citizens' Committee at a farewell dinner at the American Legion home tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock. Strange Parachutist First Amazes and Then Frightens Farmer

"I was amazed and a bit frightened," McLean said, "when I saw the parachute coming slowly downward. I could see a man swinging from the harness. I concluded it was a German airman bailing out and ran back to my house for help. They were all asleep. I looked around for a weapon but found nothing except a hay fork.'

Taking that, he dashed into the field, and found his prisoner docile and smiling.

"I helped him to his feet," the farmer recalled. "He thanked me but I could see he'd injured his foot some way. I helped him into the house. By this time my mother and sister were out of bed and made tea. He declined the tea and smiled when I told him we were very fond of it. He asked for a glass of water.

"I could see from the way he spoke that he was a man of culture," McLean said. "His English, although it had a foreign accent, was very clear, and he understood every word we said to him.

"He was a very striking-looking man, wearing a magnificent flying suit. His watch and identity bracelet were of gold."

Commons Has a Discussion Over Situation

The prime minister did not reply.

Capt. Alec Stratford Cunningham-Reid asked:

"Does the prime minister consider it prudent to announce that Hess is in a Glasgow hospital? Is that not rather unfair to the people of Glasgow, who possibly may expect raid bombs?"

"Hess won't always be in Glasgow," Churchill responded.

Churchill solemnly told the House today that "the old House of Commons has been damaged. I think, beyond repair—at least for a very long time to come" in the luftwaffe's Saturday night raid.

Commons shed not a whit of its dignity as it settled down in its new home. (The building was not identified in this dispatch.) In the age-old ceremonial the speaker, preceded by the mace rescued from Saturday night's holocaust, led the procession to prayers and then mounted to a reproduction of his chair which was destroyed by German fire bombs.

The new chamber is better lighted than the old and has rows of members' benches and other traditional appurtenances. The despatch boxes from which Gladstone and Disraeli thundered are gone forever, though, and have been replaced by modern counterparts.

The Darling Jewelry Company announced today that it will stage its annual dance for 1941 high school graduates of Warren county at the Casino at Bemus Point, N. Y., on Thursday evening, May 29.

This annual affair is made possible by Garner B. Darling, proprietor of the Darling Jewelry Store here in Warren, who said today that the dancing party is free to every graduate in the county.

A. E. Hartman

Mr. Darling and all the employes of the Darling store, who are assisting with the dance, want to take this opportunity to invite every graduate to attend and hope that a good time will be enjoyed by all, it was stated.

Many seniors of Warren and nearby high schools enjoyed last year's dance.

Strange Parachutist First Amazes and Then Frightens Farmer

"I was amazed and a bit frightened," McLean said, "when I saw the parachute coming slowly downward. I could see a man swinging from the harness. I concluded it was a German airman bailing out and ran back to my house for help. They were all asleep. I looked around for a weapon but found nothing except a hay fork.'

Taking that, he dashed into the field, and found his prisoner docile and smiling.

"I helped him to his feet," the farmer recalled. "He thanked me but I could see he'd injured his foot some way. I helped him into the house. By this time my mother and sister were out of bed and made tea. He declined the tea and smiled when I told him we were very fond of it. He asked for a glass of water.

"I could see from the way he spoke that he was a man of culture," McLean said. "His English, although it had a foreign accent, was very clear, and he understood every word we said to him.

"He was a very striking-looking man, wearing a magnificent flying suit. His watch and identity bracelet were of gold."

Commons Has a Discussion Over Situation

The prime minister did not reply.

Capt. Alec Stratford Cunningham-Reid asked:

"Does the prime minister consider it prudent to announce that Hess is in a Glassgow hospital? Is that not rather unfair to the people of Glasgow, who possibly may expect raid bombs?"

"Hess won't always be in Glasgow," Churchill responded.

Churchill solemnly told the House today that "the old House of Commons has been damaged, I think, beyond repair—at least for a very long time to come" in the luftwaffe's Saturday night raid.

Commons shed not a whit of its dignity as it settled down in its new home. (The building was not identified in this dispatch.) In the age-old ceremonial the speaker, preceded by the mace rescued from Saturday night's holocaust, led the procession to prayers and then mounted to a reproduction of his chair which was destroyed by German fire bombs.

The new chamber is better lighted than the old and has rows of members' benches and other traditional appurtenances. The despatch boxes from which Gladstone and Disraeli thundered are gone forever, though, and have been replaced by modern counterparts.

COUNTY WHEAT GROWERS JOIN IN REFERENDUM

Between 17,000 and 30,000 Pennsylvania wheat growers will vote on a proposal to give the federal agricultural department authority to control sales of this year's wheat crop in an election May 31, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. However, only about five of these are in Warren county, it was stated today.

Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture at Washington, fixed the date Saturday for the nation-wide referendum as the crop reporting service forecast another bumper wheat crop, and the war forced down the export trade.

It was explained by state agriculture conservation officials that the number voting will depend upon action on a resolution pending in congress.

The resolution requires that a farmer to be eligible to vote have 15 or more acres of wheat for the 1941 harvest. This would limit the Pennsylvania vote to 17,000 farmers, an official said.

The greater number would be eligible if the present rule remains in effect. Under the present rules, a farmer must grow 200 or more bushels of wheat a year to be eligible to vote.

If the plan meets with the approval of between 750,000 and 1,000,000 farmers voting throughout the nation, the federal department of agriculture will control sales by fixing marketing quotas, dividing a limited market among all growers and keeping a part of the surplus off the market until needed.

Approval of two-thirds of the farmers voting is necessary to put the plan into effect.

The election will be conducted by county agricultural conservation committees in cooperation with the state. Polls will be set up in each county where there are a substantial number of wheat growers.

The franking privilege is that of sending mail without paying postage and comes from the old French "franc," meaning free.

Pink and white candles were also used. At each place a small pink cake was placed and the small candleholder, contained a tiny scroll announcing the marriage.

Another surprise at the party took place when an intimate friend of the bride, Lillian Jackson, of Brocton, upon arriving, announced that her escort, Rev. Wayne Price, of Kinzua, was also her husband, the ceremony taking place on Tuesday.

Out of town guests were Mrs Meredink and Miss Bernice Stanton, of Corry, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Laurence Saxon, of Ashville, N. Y Mrs Harold Thompson, Mrs Wilbur Thompson, and Mrs Mary Bates, all of Jamestown, N. Y. Other guests were Mrs. Mabel Dallas, Mrs. John Anderson, Mrs. F. A Schoonover Mrs Roy Briggs, Miss Rebecca Saunders, Miss Grace Nuttall and Mrs. Neil Scott.

The closing meeting of the Sugar Grove Reading Club was held at the home of Mrs. A A Grant, with Mrs Carl Perrin assisting Tuesday evening. Favors arranged as the centerpiece at the tables were potted lavender alyssum. Group singing was enjoyed with Miss Maybelle Meyers leading. Several amusing games were played with prizes going to Miss Kathryn Keslar, Mrs. Harold Fitch and Mrs. Carrie Davis and the team captained by Miss Meyers. WAR'S STRANGEST EPISODE

(By DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press Foreign Writer)

Whatever may prove to be the explanation of Rudolf Hess' flight to Britain, there can be little doubt that this incredible incident must create disquiet in the minds of Germany's allies, and in the minds of the German people, who have accorded Hess a greater respect than any other man excepting the fuehrer.

From this fantastic affair one might construct all sorts of plausible theories, one of the easiest to accept being that there has been a rift in the high council of Nazidom and that Hess was fleeing in fear of a purge. There is no indication as to whether that might be the answer, but whatever it may be, there is nothing which could be more disconcerting to Hitler's followers at home and abroad than Berlin's own explanation.

They tell us that Hess has been ill for many years with a progressive disease, because of which Hitler long ago forbade him to fly. They say his flight was the act of a man "mentally deranged because of physical illness."

If that be so, how long has Hess been suffering from brain-storm? Only recently he appeared with his chief in the Balkans and made a speech. On May Day he delivered another address, and on May 4 he sat among the mighty on the platform when Hitler spoke to the Reichstag.

Was he suffering from mental derangement then? Has the advice of Hitler's closest friend and second choice for his successor been that of a man mentally deranged? Has his guidance of the German people been affected by this reported disease?

We shall have to await the word of medical men in Britain before deciding this point. Thus far the news reports present a picture of a courteous, well-balanced man who flew his own plane with a one-way load of gasoline to Britain and descended in a parachute when he could find no place to land.

Crazy or not, Hess apparently wanted to get to England, and he had no intention of returning to the fatherland. Did he flee the wrath of his master, or did Hitler send him on some mission?

Hess has been closer to Hitler than any other person, and has exercised a tremendous influence on the Nazi leader. Together they have tread the path of revolution from prison twenty years ago to the heights of the present. Hess even supported the blood purge of 1934, when some of his close friends were removed.

The shock to the German people will be great, because not only have they respected Hess, but in a considerable degree he participated in the spiritual leadership of the fuehrer. Indeed, it is probable that Hess has been mainly responsible for instilling in the minds of the people the spiritual aspect of Hitler's rule.

Always, while showing no ambition himself, Hess has preached the doctrine that Hitler "is the executor of a higher will." Out of Hess' teachings has grown the belief among many Germans that the fuehrer is indeed a Messiah.

When you consider all these things, and the close relationship between Hitler and his greatest friend, the flight to Britain becomes even more inexplicable.

By the way, it seems like a long time since Il Duce ascended the balcony and sent his words of warning over the plazas of Rome to the beat of waving arms!

Good progress is being made in preparing the cemeteries in and about Warren for the annual Memorial Day pilgrimages.

Government Cafeterias Break Lunch Bottleneck

Washington, May 13—The little problem of providing lunch for Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces who work in government buildings is one of the less significant but still highly necessary aspects of life in your nation's capital.

For while Treasury and State Departments are right down town, surrounded by restaurants, Agriculture, OPM, Navy and a few of the other big offices are decidedly in the outfield and too far away from everything for the help to run home or into town for lunch. And government employes have to eat just like everyone else, even if some of the taxpayers do claim they eat up too much.

The way most lunch concessions are operated, everything is on a pretty altruistic basis. If a clerk or messenger wants to pack his lunch in a newspaper or shoe box, that's all right, and he can come in and sit at a table with the paying customers.

It even goes so far that if a stenographer or file clerk wants cheap tea, she can bring her own tea, get a free cup and hot water and unashamedly make her brew right in the restaurant. Or the service will furnish a tall glass, free ice and free sugar. With those ingredients, the customer can get a passable ice cold lemonade by buying three slices of lemon for a cent.

The high-mindedness of this cheap meal policy for government clerks was a long time a-borning. Before the last war, private operators had the luncheon and refreshments stand concessions in the hallowed halls of government and they were uniformly bad. With the big influx of war workers, the superintendent of the army and navy buildings set up a revolving fund to finance concessions to be run the way the employes wanted them. This idea took hold, absorbed private concessionaries, and at one time was serving 6000 meals a day at the famous old Mall cafeteria in Henry Park.

That grew into a joint welfare service. In 1927 it was incorporated as the Welfare Association of Public Buildings and Grounds which today operates 32 cafeterias, 16 news stands and soda bars, the Washington tourist camp, a bicycle renting concession, boating concessions on the Tidal Basin, six swimming pools, two vacation camps for children of lower paid federal employes, a housing project, and a couple of overnight dormitories for soldiers in Washington on leave.

The cafeteria in 32 government buildings are of course the big business of this association today. They're dishing it out now at the rate of 16 million lunches a year, or about 55,000 a day. The average check is only from 19 to 23 cents although the daily two-bit special of a meat and two vegetables has 10,000 customers. The gross income will run more than two and a half million dollars this year.

The association figures that its profit on each tray averages only a third of a cent, but under its peculiar setup half of the net

The building committee of Grace church has finally approved plans for an edifice at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Prospect street. Bids will be advertised for in the near future so that the structure may be enclosed before next winter. At least a year will be required to complete the temple of worship.

The first up-river excursion over the Pennsy will take place Sunday from Warren to Bradford and Olean. The fare including war tax is $2.38. The fact that only a few hours will be allowed at the destination will discourage many excursionists. Years ago the fare was only $1.00 with the privilege of remaining over until Monday.

Members of Company I are anxiously awaiting the arrival of their pay checks. The amount to be paid in Warren will total about $3,000 and as a number of members are out of work, it will come in handy.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Soviet Stamps Mark Industrial Gains

SOVIET Russia's industrial and agricultural advances are commemorated by a special issue of seven stamps. The blast furnace, pictured on the stamp above, honors iron and steel production, now four times that of the country's pre-World War total.

Russia's vast storehouse of mineral wealth is located in the Ukraine, the Caucasus and Ural mountains. Production of strategic war materials is steadily increasing.

The iron industry is concentrated in the rich Ukraine, dangerously near Nazi-dominated Rumania. Here, too, are Russia's greatest coal mines. Additional sources of iron ore are available in deposits south of Moscow and in the Ural mountains.

Russia leads the world in production of manganese ore, necessary alloy of steel. Principal manganese mines are found in the Caucasus mountains of Georgia, east of the Black Sea.

Although production of Russian aluminum is comparatively recent, the industry has expanded rapidly and Russia supplies 1/13 of the world total. One-fifth of the world supply of chromite, from which chrome steel is made, comes from Soviet mines.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

High and Low

From thousands of feet into the air to hundreds, below sea level extends the rough surface of the earth. If you're up on world elevations you should score high on these questions about high and low points.

1. The highest and lowest points in the U. S. are within 100 miles of each other. What are they?
2. Where is the highest mountain in the world, and what is its approximate height?
3. What are the elevations at the north and south poles?
4. What well-known high mountain peak once carried the name Mt. Denali, meaning "Home of the Sun?"
5. Where is the greatest known ocean depth?

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Don't, for goodness sake, call it a witch hunt, because it isn't like that at all. But rarely has there been so much "investigate-your-neighbor" stuff going on as there is in Washington today.

If you even plan to apply for a government job, be sure that your patriotic record is as clean as George Washington's.

It happens like this: You can't work for the government if you owe allegiance to any organization that is violently "agin" our political way of life. Thus, when you apply for a job, the Civil Service Commission makes all possible investigation within its means.

Suppose you get a job. You get assigned to a typewriter, we'll say, in the Treasury Department. The Treasury has its own investigatory staff. It gives you another going over. Still, all clear.

Then, you get an offer from a friend you have made to come over to the Office of Production Management at a better salary. You make the jump. You are investigated again—because certainly there are few spots where a person playing loose and free with his government's secrets is more dangerous than at OPM.

Refer It To FBI

STILL, you come through without even a slightly muddy hem. Then, somebody hears something. You were seen last night with a very suspicious person. The "somebody" who heard something sits down and writes your boss, or the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or the Department of Justice. If the justice people think there is the slightest possibility there might be something in the case, they refer it to FBI, and J. Edgar Hoover's boys would be knitting on the job if they didn't make a thorough investigation.

So you see, where this thing leads. Working for the government is becoming a stroll through a maze of investigations. I know of one young woman who has worked for four different agencies in three years and claims she knows of six different times she has been investigated. Some of these were routine—but a couple must have been on complaints of alleged subversive activities. She doesn't know definitely about that, but she does know that every time the investigating agency has given her a clean bill of patriotic health and her progress has been uninterrupted.

Aside from the routine initial investigations to determine if a prospective employe ever swore allegiance to an "ism" that advocates the overthrow of our form of government, most of the probings now come as result of letters to the boss, Civil Service, or FBI.

Nobody Is Exempt

NOBODY is exempt—not even the department heads—but many of these letters can be put into the "poison pen" classification as soon as they are opened. Nevertheless, there are enough more that have to be investigated to make it a major headache with those who have to do the work. A lot of them even then turn out to be nothing more than somebody's trying to get somebody's job—or hoping to even an old score—or just being what is politely referred to as a crank.

But—and here is where the rub comes—some persons considered dangerous in their philosophies or activities have been exposed as results of these letters. The proportion is very small, still the total is enough to make it important that "no stone be left unturned."

Serious government officials are trying to keep the thing from becoming a "witch hunt" without impairing the efficiency or tying the hands of investigating agencies. The whole business poses a neat problem of keeping the sign, "Democracy at Work," free from smears.

WAR'S STRANGEST EPISODE

(By DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press Foreign Writer)

Whatever may prove to be the explanation of Rudolf Hess' flight to Britain, there can be little doubt that this incredible incident must create disquiet in the minds of Germany's allies, and in the minds of the German people, who have accorded Hess a greater respect than any other man excepting the fuehrer.

From this fantastic affair one might construct all sorts of plausible theories, one of the easiest to accept being that there has been a rift in the high council of Nazidom and that Hess was fleeing in fear of a purge. There is no indication as to whether that might be the answer, but whatever it may be, there is nothing which could be more disconcerting to Hitler's followers at home and abroad than Berlin's own explanation.

They tell us that Hess has been ill for many years with a progressive disease, because of which Hitler long ago forbade him to fly. They say his flight was the act of a man "mentally deranged because of physical illness."

If that be so, how long has Hess been suffering from brain-storm? Only recently he appeared with his chief in the Balkans and made a speech. On May Day he delivered another address, and on May 4 he sat among the mighty on the platform when Hitler spoke to the Reichstag.

Was he suffering from mental derangement then? Has the advice of Hitler's closest friend and second choice for his successor been that of a man mentally deranged? Has his guidance of the German people been affected by this reported disease?

We shall have to await the word of medical men in Britain before deciding this point. Thus far the news reports present a picture of a courteous, well-balanced man who flew his own plane with a one-way load of gasoline to Britain and descended in a parachute when he could find no place to land.

Crazy or not, Hess apparently wanted to get to England, and he had no intention of returning to the fatherland. Did he flee the wrath of his master, or did Hitler send him on some mission?

Hess has been closer to Hitler than any other person, and has exercised a tremendous influence on the Nazi leader. Together they have tread the path of revolution from prison twenty years ago to the heights of the present. Hess even supported the blood purge of 1934, when some of his close friends were removed.

The shock to the German people will be great, because not only have they respected Hess, but in a considerable degree he participated in the spiritual leadership of the fuehrer. Indeed, it is probable that Hess has been mainly responsible for instilling in the minds of the people the spiritual aspect of Hitler's rule.

Always, while showing no ambition himself, Hess has preached the doctrine that Hitler "is the executor of a higher will." Out of Hess' teachings has grown the belief among many Germans that the fuehrer is indeed a Messiah.

When you consider all these things, and the close relationship between Hitler and his greatest friend, the flight to Britain becomes even more inexplicable.

By the way, it seems like a long time since Il Duce ascended the balcony and sent his words of warning over the plazas of Rome to the beat of waving arms!

Good progress is being made in preparing the cemeteries in and about Warren for the annual Memorial Day pilgrimages.

Many of the topcoats that are being worn these cool evenings have a distinct odor of mothballs.

Government Cafeterias Break Lunch Bottleneck

Washintgon, May 13—The little problem of providing lunch for Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces who work in government buildings is one of the less significant but still highly necessary aspects of life in your nation's capital.

For while Treasury and State Departments are right down town, surrounded by restaurants, Agriculture, OPM, Navy and a few of the other big offices are decidedly in the outfield and too far away from everything for the help to run home or into town for lunch. And government employes have to eat just like everyone else, even if some of the taxpayers do claim they eat up too much.

The way most lunch concessions are operated, everything is on a pretty altruistic basis. If a clerk or messenger wants to pack his lunch in a newspaper or shoe box, that's all right, and he can come in and sit at a table with the paying customers.

It even goes so far that if a stenographer or file clerk wants cheap tea, she can bring her own tea, get a free cup and hot water and unashamedly make her brew right in the restaurant. Or the service will furnish a tall glass, free ice and free sugar. With those ingredients, the customer can get a passable ice cold lemonade by buying three slices of lemon for a cent.

The high-mindedness of this cheap meal policy for government clerks was a long time a-borning. Before the last war, private operators had the luncheon and refreshments stand concessions in the hallowed halls of government and they were uniformly bad. With the big influx of war workers, the superintendent of the army and navy buildings set up a revolving fund to finance concessions to be run the way the employes wanted them. This idea took hold, absorbed private concessionaries, and at one time was serving 6000 meals a day at the famous old Mall cafeteria in Henry Park.

That grew into a joint welfare service. In 1927 it was incorporated as the Welfare Association of Public Buildings and Grounds which today operates 32 cafeterias, 16 news stands and soda bars, the Washington tourist camp, a bicycle renting concession, boating concessions on the Tidal Basin, six swimming pools, two vacation camps for children of lower paid federal employes, a housing project, and a couple of overnight dormitories for soldiers in Washington on leave.

The cafeteria in 32 government buildings are of course the big business of this association today. They're dishing it out now at the rate of 16 million lunches a year, or about 55,000 a day. The average check is only from 19 to 23 cents although the daily two-bit special of a meat and two vegetables has 10,000 customers. The gross income will run more than two and a half million dollars this year.

The association figures that its profit on each tray averages only a third of a cent, but under its peculiar setup half of the net

Interesting Items Taken From the Warren Evening Times

In 1921

The building committee of Grace church has finally approved plans for an edifice at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Prospect street. Bids will be advertised for in the near future so that the structure may be enclosed before next winter. At least a year will be required to complete the temple of worship.

The first up-river excursion over the Pennsy will take place Sunday from Warren to Bradford and Olean. The fare including war tax is $2.38. The fact that only a few hours will be allowed at the destination will discourage many excursionists. Years ago the fare was only $1.00 with the privilege of remaining over until Monday.

Members of Company I are anxiously awaiting the arrival of their pay checks. The amount to be paid in Warren will total about $3,000 and as a number of members are out of work, it will come in handy.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Soviet Stamps Mark Industrial Gains

SOVIET Russia's industrial and agricultural advances are commemorated by a special issue of seven stamps. The blast furnace, pictured on the stamp above, honors iron and steel production, now four times that of the country's pre-World War total.

Russia's vast storehouse of mineral wealth is located in the Ukraine, the Caucasus and Ural mountains. Production of strategic war materials is steadily increasing.

The iron industry is concentrated in the rich Ukraine, dangerously near Nazi-dominated Rumania. Here, too, are Russia's greatest coal mines. Additional sources of iron ore are available in deposits south of Moscow and in the Ural mountains.

Russia leads the world in production of manganese ore, necessary alloy of steel. Principal manganese mines are found in the Caucasus mountains of Georgia, east of the Black Sea.

Although production of Russian aluminum is comparatively recent, the industry has expanded rapidly and Russia supplies 1/13 of the world total. One-fifth of the world supply of chromite, from which chrome steel is made, comes from Soviet mines.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

High and Low

From thousands of feet into the air to hundreds, below sea level extends the rough surface of the earth. If you're up on world elevations you should score high on these questions about high and low points.

1. The highest and lowest points in the U. S. are within 100 miles of each other. What are they?
2. Where is the highest mountain in the world, and what is its approximate height?
3. What are the elevations at the north and south poles?
4. What well-known high mountain peak once carried the name Mt. Denali, meaning "Home of the Sun?"
5. Where is the greatest known ocean depth?

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Don't, for goodness sake, call it a witch hunt, because it isn't like that at all. But rarely has there been so much "investigate-your-neighbor" stuff going on as there is in Washington today.

If you even plan to apply for a government job, be sure that your patriotic record is as clean as George Washington's.

It happens like this: You can't work for the government if you owe allegiance to any organization that is violently "agin" our political way of life. Thus, when you apply for a job, the Civil Service Commission makes all possible investigation within its means.

Suppose you get a job. You get assigned to a typewriter, we'll say, in the Treasury Department. The Treasury has its own investigatory staff. It gives you another going over. Still, all clear.

Then, you get an offer from a friend you have made to come over to the Office of Production Management at a better salary. You make the jump. You are investigated again—because certainly there are few spots where a person playing loose and free with his government's secrets is more dangerous than at OPM.

Refer It To FBI

STILL, you come through without even a slightly muddy hem. Then, somebody hears something. You were seen last night with a very suspicious person. The "somebody" who heard something sits down and writes your boss, or the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or the Department of Justice. If the justice people think there is the slightest possibility there might be something in the case, they refer it to FBI, and J. Edgar Hoover's boys would be knitting on the job if they didn't make a thorough investigation.

So you see where this thing leads. Working for the government is becoming a stroll through a maze of investigations. I know of one young woman who has worked for four different agencies in three years and claims she knows of six different times she has been investigated. Some of these were routine—but a couple must have been on complaints of alleged subversive activities. She doesn't know definitely about that, but she does know that every time the investigating agency has given her a clean bill of patriotic health and her progress has been uninterrupted.

Aside from the routine initial investigations to determine if a prospective employe ever swore allegiance to an "ism" that advocates the overthrow of our form of government, most of the probings now come as result of letters to the boss, Civil Service, or FBI.

Nobody Is Exempt

NOBODY is exempt—not even the department heads—but many of these letters can be put into the "poison pen" classification as soon as they are opened. Nevertheless, there are enough more that have to be investigated to make it a major headache with those who have to do the work. A lot of them even then turn out to be nothing more than somebody's trying to get somebody's job—or hoping to even an old score—or just being what is politely referred to as a crank.

But—and here is where the rub comes—some persons considered dangerous in their philosophies or activities have been exposed as results of these letters. The proportion is very small, still the total is enough to make it important that "no stone be left unturned."

Serious government officials are trying to keep the thing from becoming a "witch hunt" without impairing the efficiency or tying the hands of investigating agencies. The whole business poses a neat problem of keeping the sign, "Democracy at Work," free from smears.

Fine Program and Candlelight Ceremonial Features Girl Reserve Mother, Daughter Event

Girl Reserves, with their mothers and guests, numbering 160, enjoyed their annual mother and daughter banquet at the Y. W. C. A. activities building Monday evening. Table appointments were carried out in spring flowers, programs and camp bulletins in green and yellow.

Patty Smith and Margaret Blick provided pleasing violin and piano selections during the serving of the dinner, which was prefaced by the invocation by Mrs. J. H. West, general secretary of the association.

Patty Knapp, president of the High School Girls' Club, proved an able toastmaster, presenting Betty Edinger for a toast to mothers and Mrs. Hilmar Roos for the response.

Special music included two soprano solos, "Habanera" by Bizet and "For My Mother" by Malotte, sung by Bonny Johnson, with accompaniment by Shirley Allen. Mary Freund, violinist, played "Mother", with Arlyene McLaughlin as accompanist.

Mrs. James Waite, Girl Reserve advisor on the Y. W. C. A. board, gave a thoughtful address on kinds of mothers and daughters, drew a parallel between the white birch chosen to honor mothers and the requirements of successful mothers.

An amusing skit was then presented by Jane Sherwood, Patricia Simmons, Alice Betts, Ruth Rowland, Jeannine Hunzinger, Patricia Storum, Teresa Fino, Mary Lewis, Joyce Callahan, Betty Leafstrom, Ruth Davis, Nancy Wickstrom and Barbara Nichols, depicting the garb of their mothers in an earlier day under the title "The Old A'-bum".

Florence Armstrong, Girl Reserve secretary, then took charge of the candlelight ceremonial for presentation of awards, in which she was assisted by Mary Lemund, Betty Murbach and Lois McCloskey.

Roving Reporter Greatly Pleased At Play Prospects

The roving reporter dropped in at the dress rehearsal for "Three Men on a Horse" last evening and, when the curtain went down on the last act, left with the definite impression that the spring production of the Warren Players is as free from rough spots as any play the local organization has presented.

There was no noticeable hesitation in lines, the action moved swiftly and indications are that "Three Men on a Horse" is going to be one of the most entertaining comedies the Players have yet produced.

We were frankly amazed at the facility with which Lester Criswell and his staff changed sets, and the ease with which the actors and actresses adapted themselves to the different locales.

Until closing time at eight o'clock, the box office was doing a rushing business, and reservations were still pouring in this morning.

Tonight the cast uses the stage for the last time before they step out on the boards "for keeps" Thursday night. Tomorrow evening they will hold the final speed-line rehearsal, with the stage crew drilling again on set-changing.

The curtain time for Thursday and Friday evenings is 8:30.

Roving Reporter Greatly Pleased At Play Prospects

The roving reporter dropped in at the dress rehearsal for "Three Men on a Horse" last evening and, when the curtain went down on the last act, left with the definite impression that the spring production of the Warren Players is as free from rough spots as any play the local organization has presented.

There was no noticeable hesitation in lines, the action moved swiftly and indications are that "Three Men on a Horse" is going to be one of the most entertaining comedies the Players have yet produced.

We were frankly amazed at the facility with which Lester Criswell and his staff changed sets, and the ease with which the actors and actresses adapted themselves to the different locales.

Until closing time at eight o'clock, the box office was doing a rushing business, and reservations were still pouring in this morning.

Tonight the cast uses the stage for the last time before they step out on the boards "for keeps" Thursday night. Tomorrow evening they will hold the final speed-line rehearsal, with the stage crew drilling again on set-changing.

The curtain time for Thursday and Friday evenings is 8:30.

Additional Activities of Warren County Children's Aid Reported

(Continuing the report of the fine service rendered in child health activities by the Children's Aid Society of Warren County, as reported by the social worker, Miss Maryan Brugger.)

The Children's Aid Society cooperates with other agencies and individuals in the community in procuring or providing services essential to the health and well-being of a particular child The well-baby and other state clinics are invaluable to its efficient function in the preventive field, the Warren General Hospital with its laboratory and dispensary meets the agency s need for treatment services. Other health agencies, including those for handicapped and tubercular children are indispensable for their help with these cases State visiting and school nurses, together with dental hygienists, are helpful both in the referral of child on requiring specialized services and in cooperating with the agency in carrying out a plan for these children To all of these, as well as to the public assistance and other relief-giving agencies the society acknowledges its indebtedness Its work which depends to a great extent upon the understanding and cooperation of the individual physician dentist and specialist has been furthered considerably by advice and help from these sources

Since May 1 1940 which opened the present fiscal year social case-work with clients has involved 957 contracts including 202 visits to own homes 92 visits to foster homes 508 office interviews and 155 visits relating to medical dental and mental health services and maternity home care Contacts through correspondence included 691 letters and summaries to clients references institutions and other sources

The society also handled 23 inquiries for out-of-county agencies requesting investigation in Warren county. Fifteen talks of an educational nature were given to service clubs, church groups and Parent-Teacher Associations, both in the borough and county. This expression of interest and approval on the part of the community has been most gratifying. These people are in a position to be helpful in making referrals and in assisting the agency to carry on its work.

Because the society must depend upon its members for financial support, it is always willing to inform the public about its services The worker attended two meetings on adoption and adolescent behavior and monthly seminars conducted by the Children's Aid Society of Allegheny County The last regional conference on social work was attended by two board members and the worker.

It is satisfying to review the accomplishments of the past year and constructive to look upon them as stepping stones to the work of the coming years. The period through which we have just passed shows a growing conception of the needs to be met To adjust the policy and define the function of the society so that it can best serve the children of its county requires continuous interpretation to the community Not only have the board members taken an active role in this field but have assisted with services to the children under care This help has relieved the workers of many duties in conjunction with the administration and field work dependent upon one person The faithful and conscientious assistance of the office secretary, Eva Passinger the splendid cooperation of the board of directors and the helpful relationships with other organizations in the community have combined to help make this one of the most progressive and promising years in the annals of the Children s Aid Society of Warren County

MAKE PLANS TO ORGANIZE CLASS IN DISTRIBUTION

The Retail Merchandising Committee of the Warren Chamber of Commerce met Monday with Bishop Brown, of the University of Pittsburgh, to discuss preliminary measures for organizing classes in distributive education during the next school year

It was explained that the merchants of the community could arrange in their own program of subjects to be taught naming those which in their combination would be most valuable to themselves and their employes Such subjects could include behavior for merchants; cost accounting food service speaking for sales people fashions, or any other subject dealing with a problem involving persons and customers

Such classes would be conducted under the auspices of the local school board and paid for by the State and Federal departments of education A qualified supervisor would be on the job full time to arrange classes and to consult with merchants on matters pertaining to the retail trade

There would be no charge for enrollment in the classes Class sessions would be conducted with extreme informality with discussions open to all in attendance so that matters of daily concern could be discussed and solved by exchange of experiences

It was the consensus of those at the meeting that the services of a supervisor be requested and that definite plans be made for sponsoring a series of courses to begin in September.

Youngsville Eighth Victim Of Unbeaten Warren High Nine

Warren High hung up its eighth consecutive diamond win yesterday afternoon at Youngsville with a 9-3 trampling of the Eagles.

The Red and White could get but four hits off Sedon, the winning pitcher, in five innings, and one in two frames off Bennett, while the Dragons got ten off Cordner. Seven errors didn't help the Youngsville cause, and the locals played virtually airtight ball afield.

Edmiston, Johnson and Sharp each hit a pair of singles, as did Clark and Schumaker for the losers.

TWO CHAMPIONS ARE SELECTED IN MIBS EVENT

Play in the National Marble Tournament was resumed here Monday evening after having been rained out for three consecutive nights last week. The tournaments last night were held at Beaty school, where champions for both Jefferson and South street schools were chosen.

Rudy Ahlgren, 10 years old, of 106 Redwood street, copped the Jefferson title, while Gerry Littlefield, also 10, of 109½ South Carver street, won the South street championship.

Interest in this tournament has been mounting steadily and it is expected that tonight's playoffs will be the peak in participation. At that time the tourneys for East street, Beaty, and the rural and parochial schools will be held.

The general public is invited to attend these tournaments and particularly the finals to be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the South Side playground, when the school champions will compete for the city championship.

Saturday's winners will represent Warren in the national playoffs to be held at Hershey during the week of June 15-19.

Results of Monday's playoffs are as follows:

Jefferson: Ring 1 winners—Rudy Ahlgren; ring 2, Henry Blick; ring 3, Clifford Maze, Champion, Rudy Ahlgren.

South street: Ring 1—Dick Olson; ring 2, Gerry Littlefield; ring 3, Leon Whitmore; ring 4, Jay Smith. Champion, Gerry Littlefield.

ARCHIBALD STAKES A CLAIM TO DIADEM

Washington, May 13 —(AP)—Joey Archibald, a little fighting man from Providence, R. I., laid claim to recognition today as the leading contender for the National Boxing Association's featherweight title held by Pete Scalzo in 40-odd states.

Archibald gained a split decision over Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, last night in a bout that served merely to further complicate the featherweight championship situation.

Jeffra, who lost a disputed decision to Archibald here two years ago but reversed the verdict in Baltimore in 1940, was recognized, prior to last night, as the featherweight titleholder in New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania and California.

Referee Eddie La Fond cast his vote for Jeffra last night, but the two judges, Bob Eller and James Sullivan, decided Archibald's aggressiveness in the late rounds entitled him to victory.

CONN AND DAD RUN AFOUL OF POLICE

Pittsburgh, May 13—(AP)—Billy Conn, the light heavyweight boxing champion, and his father both were given the count here yesterday by police.

Billy was picked up by a motorcycle officer and charged with speeding and then with driving without a license, which the officer said had been lifted for speeding some time ago. He was released on $500 bail.

William Conn, the boxer's 45-year old father, was charged with disorderly conduct, the police saying he was battling with two men on the street. He paid a $5 fine.

TWO ELK TEAMS ROLL IN STATE TOURNAMENT

Warren Elks were represented by two teams at the annual tournament of the Pennsylvania State Bowling Association in Pittsburgh over the weekend.

The No. 1 team had a nice chance to finish high in the standings, but the first game held them down considerably although they hit 949 and 923 in the last two for a total of 2670. Howard Potts' 580 was top block for the locals.

Glenn Grosch and Jim Scalise turned in 975 for the best doubles score for the locals, and Don Hogan's 518 was tops in the singles.

HARVEY & CAREY NEED ONLY ONE GAME FOR TITLE

With Barney Malone leading the way, the South Side Market bowlers of the Elks League last night took three straight games from Harvey & Carey outfit to come within a single game of the 1941 championship of the circuit.

The remaining necessary games of the seven-game series will be rolled Wednesday evening at the Elk drives, starting at 7 o'clock. While the South Siders need but one game to win, the Harvey & Carey crew must take four in a row to cop the season's championship.

Malone turned in the only double century games of the evening, 205 and 202. Not a man on the Harvey-Carey team could get over the 500 mark for three games.

SPORT SCATTERINGS by Bill Rice

Jim Marker calls our attention to the following paragraphs from Havey Boyle's column in the Post-Gazette which will be of special interest to baseball fans who remember when Warren was tied up with the famous old Iron and Oil League. Honus Wagner was a member of the famous 1894 team, and the following has to do with both Honus and Connie Mack:

Somebody asked Wagner if he remembered anything about Connie as a player and manager of the Pirates, Mack having been the boss of the Buccos just before the start of the Flying Dutchman's career in the majors. Honus replied without a smile that he once drove 14 miles by horse and buggy to see Connie catch for Pittsburgh, and when quizzed regarding the actual combat, came up with a typical yarn without batting an eye. He said:

"Sure, I played against Connie. It wasn't in the big leagues. You see, I was playing for the Warren club of the Iron and Oil League, in 1894, and Mack brought his Pittsburgh team up to Warren for an exhibition game. Funny thing happened that day. We had the Pirates licked by seven or eight runs with two out in the ninth, when they filled the bases. The batter hit an easy roller to our second baseman. With a cinch play at first to end the game, the second sacker made a damn fool throw to the plate and everybody scored. They finally beat us out."

In his recital of the incident, Wagner didn't say whether the catcher—thinking the play would be made at first—had walked off the field, but he probably will add this detail with others the next time the matter comes up. Anyhow, his manner of recalling the game without benefit of memo or notes was of such a convincing manner as to admit of no Doubting Thomases.

"He's a grand old man and a wonderful tribute to baseball."

That was Frisch's reaction after listening to Mack during the breakfast and in their off-stage conversation.

The times at the Warren-Bradford-Kane track meet here last Saturday more than compare with those in district high school meets around Pittsburgh, or, as a matter of fact, those turned in by some of the leading colleges. We glanced down the Carnegie Tech-Geneva summaries and noted that the cinders flew much more furiously at Beaty Field that afternoon than in the Tartan Bowl. For instance, Bill Hillman hit 9.9 in the century, compared with the winning time of 10.4 in the college meet. Phil Larson's 23.5 two-twenty was the same as that of Pash, of Carnegie Tech, and when Bill Hillman shoved the shot 45 feet and three inches, he put it seven feet farther from the circle than did the winner at the Pittsburgh meet. Bove, of Bradford, pole vaulted six inches higher than Perez, of Tech, who won that event, with a push of 9 feet, 3 inches, and Jim Nelson, winner of the discus, chucked the platter nearly nine feet farther than the 108 feet chalked up at the Tech-Geneva fracas. Several of the local contests were close, too, which means that more than the winner beat the collegiate marks. For instance, in the century, Hillman was only half of the depth of his chest ahead of Bradford's Jack Nelson, and the Kane star beat out Seymour in the shot put by three inches.

Just as we go to press, we receive word that, although Doc Utley is the State Hospital staff's ablest angler, Bill Wilderspin and Johnny Lauffenburger are not far behind. The latter duo claim they at least return with their tackle, if not a mess of trout.

Sports Round-up

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 13—Broadway newsreel crowds applaud every time Hank Greenberg is shown in an army uniform. . . . When and if Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth meet in that golf match, the old Bam probably will remind Ty of the time he struck out Cobb. Sam Crawford and Bobby Veach of the Tigers with the bases loaded. . . . Freddy Corcoran, who knows his golf onions, tabs Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., as a real dark horse in the National Open. This 20-year-old turned pro in the Greensboro Open and finished in the money. Last week he tied Clayton Heafner for first place in the Carolina Open, then won the play-off by firing a 64 to Heafner's 69.

Today's Guest Star

Roy Shudt, Troy Times-Record: "Does it strike you as odd how the big boys are bowing out in order? . . . First it was Babe Ruth, wearing No. 3. . . . Then Lou Gehrig, No. 4. . . . Last week it was Hank Greenberg, No. 5. . . . No. 6? . . .

The Sports Parade

Up in Boston they refer to Joe DiMaggio merely as Dom DiMaggio's brother. . . . Eddie Rickenbacker is writing friends he positively will attend the Indianapolis 500-mile race—and that's great news for all. . . . Pete Coscarart would be playing second base for Montreal if the Giants would let him get out of the league. . . Georgie Abrams, Ken Overlin's stablemate, will headline the Army-Navy boxing show Gene Tunney is staging Saturday at Jacksonville. . . . Larry MacPhail is so high on television he is toying with the idea of piping the World's Series into a half dozen Brooklyn theaters—if the Dodgers are in there, of course. . . . "The Sporting News" has issued its 1941 record book and it's a "must" on your sports reading program.

Today's True Story

Two weeks ago a friend long-distanced Hank Greenberg from Honolulu. . . . He said: "You've got to have more power if you're going to start hitting homers. . . . I'm sending you four cases of pineapples" . . . Last Tuesday the pineapples arrived . . . and on Wednesday Hank hit his first two homers of the year.

It All Happened Here

Johnny Riemenschneider, pitching for the Whitten, Ia., Highs, whiffed 21-batters in a seven-inning game to win, 16-0. Just to rub it in, he homered, doubled and singled. . . . And down in Mississippi, Perkinson Junior College made 14 runs, 14 hits and 14 errors while beating Wood Junior, which errors. Don't look now, but 55 runs have been piled up against the Emory and Henry baseballers in their past two games. . . . And this paradox may interest you: The Arizona State Bulldogs have won the Border Conference football title two years in a row and both times met an eastern team in Sun Bowl games, but still haven't been able to lick the red ink. Even the college stationery is lettered in red.

Oh, Oh!

And now it's the fans of Idaho Falls, Idaho, who are wondering if Brooklyn is still in the league. . . One of the papers out there completely ignored the Brooks in the National League standings the other day, but put the Giants in twice.

BOBO TAKES SPLIT NOD OVER DORAZIO

Pittsburgh, May 13—(AP)—Although penalized by the referee with the loss of three rounds for low blows, Harry Bobo, slugging Pittsburgh negro, gained the vote of two judges and a decision over Gus Dorazio, of Philadelphia, in a 10-round bout here last night.

Referee Red Robinson, who thought the Philadelphian won, gave Dorazio the second, fourth and fifth rounds for foul blows and Bobo the sixth for the same cause. The winner weighed 205 and the loser 191.

BILL LEE HALTS REDS AS YANKS BOW TO BOSOX

Associated Press Sports Writer

The heaviest pressure in the major leagues today is not on the first- place clubs—it is on the world champion Cincinnati Reds and the once invincible New York Yankees, both of whom are in fourth place in their respective leagues.

Their predicaments are strangely similar. Each has lost five of its past seven games. Each has had trouble rounding out its pitching staff. Each has been in a batting slump. Each will be at home today and tomorrow for a two-game series with the league leaders—the Brooklyn Dodgers at Cincinnati and the Cleveland Indians at New York.

The Reds were humiliated 12-1 yesterday by the Chicago Cubs and left staggering on the fringe of the second division.

In 11 games in the past two weeks the Reds never have made more than seven hits and have averaged five. They were held to six yesterday by Big Bill Lee. No ball club, no matter how perfect its pitching or how flawless its fielding, can get anywhere with that kind of power.

The Reds, however, haven't even been getting consistent hurling from anyone except Bucky Walters, and their famous defense has shown signs of collapse. They made four errors yesterday and three the day before.

The Cardinals conquered Pittsburgh again yesterday, 6-2, with a 13-hit attack and the smooth, seven-hit pitching of Lon Warneke. It was the fourth victory without defeat for the veteran righthander.

The Yankees were whipped, 8-4, by the Boston Red Sox with old Lefty Grove spacing 10 hits for the 295th triumph of his career and his second of the season.

The Washington Senators subdued the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-1, in yesterday's only other major league encounter. Dutch Leonard pitched six-hit ball for his third straight success. Washington's eight timely hits included a homer by Jim Vernon.

BIG NAMES DUE TO QUIT MAJOR LEAGUES MAY 15

New York, May 13—(AP)—Some of baseball's longest and most colorful voyages are about to go on the rocks on May 15.

That is a barrier major league clubs can't pass with more than 25 active players, and to get to the limit managers have cast adrift such once-great players as Paul Waner, Dick Bartell, Wes Ferrel, Van Mungo, Tex Carleton and Earl Averill. It's also the date set for Jimmy Dykes' official retirement as a player, but the fiery White Sox manager hasn't done any playing to speak of since 1938.

Latest to go are Waner, Bartell and Mungo, whose combined term of major league service up to this season totals 39 years. The first two drew their outright release from Brooklyn and Detroit Sunday. At the same time Mungo was taken off the Dodgers' active list with indications that he soon will join Carleton at Montreal. Carleton was shipped down to the Brooklyn "farm" a couple of weeks ago, just about a year after he had pitched a no-hit game against the champion Cincinnati Reds.

The Boston Braves cast off Ferrell and Averill within the past week or two after taking them from American League clubs at the start never got to start this season, winding up at Minneapolis after arguing about the contract the Cubs offered him.

Some of them may catch on with other clubs, as Bump Hadley did with the Athletics after being cut loose by first the Yankees and then the Giants. Bill Terry, the Giants manager, already has shown interest in Bartell, who sparked his club to pennants in 1936 and 1937, and may take on as infield "insurance". If they don't land other jobs, the big leagues will miss them.

Additional Activities of Warren County Children's Aid Reported

(Continuing the report of the fine service rendered in child health activities by the Children's Aid Society of Warren County, as reported by the social worker, Miss Maryan Brugger.)

The Children's Aid Society cooperates with other agencies and individuals in the community in procuring or providing services essential to the health and well-being of a particular child. The well-baby and other state clinics are invaluable to its efficient function in the preventive field, the Warren General Hospital with its laboratory and dispensary meets the agency's need for treatment services. Other health agencies, including those for handicapped and tubercular children, are indispensable for their help with these cases. State, visiting and school nurses, together with dental hygienists, are helpful both in the referral of children requiring specialized services and in cooperating with the agency in carrying out a plan for these children. To all of these, as well as to the public assistance and other relief-giving agencies, the society acknowledges its indebtedness. Its work which depends to a great extent upon the understanding and cooperation of the individual physician, dentist and specialist, has been furthered considerably by advice and help from these sources.

Since May 1, 1940, which opened the present fiscal year, social case-work with clients has involved 957 contracts, including 202 visits to own homes, 92 visits to foster homes, 508 office interviews and 155 visits relating to medical, dental and mental health services and maternity home care. Contacts through correspondence included 691 letters and summaries to clients, references, institutions and other sources.

The society also handled 23 inquiries for out-of-county agencies, requesting investigation in Warren county. Fifteen talks of an educational nature were given to service clubs, church groups and Parent-Teacher Associations, both in the borough and county. This expression of interest and approval on the part of the community has been most gratifying. These people are in a position to be helpful in making referrals and in assisting the agency to carry on its work.

Because the society must depend upon its members for finanacial support, it is always willing to inform the public about its services. The worker attended two meetings on adoption and adolescent behavior and monthly seminars conducted by the Children's Aid Society of Allegheny County. The last regional conference on social work was attended by two board members and the worker.

It is satisfying to review the accomplishments of the past year and constructive to look upon them as stepping stones to the work of the coming years. The period through which we have just passed shows a growing conception of the needs to be met. To adjust the policy and define the function of the society, so that it can best serve the children of its county, requires continuous interpretation to the community. Not only have the board members taken an active role in this field but have assisted with services to the children under care. This help has relieved the workers of many duties in conjunction with the administration and field work dependent upon one person. The faithful and conscientious assistance of the office secretary, Eva Passinger, the splendid cooperation of the board of directors, and the helpful relationships with other organizations in the community have combined to help make this one of the most progressive and promising years in the annals of the Children's Aid Society of Warren County.

MAKE PLANS TO ORGANIZE CLASS IN DISTRIBUTION

The Retail Merchandising Committee of the Warren Chamber of Commerce met Monday with Bishop Brown, of the University of Pittsburgh, to discuss preliminary measures for organizing classes in distributive education during the next school year.

It was explained that the merchants of the community could arrange their own program of subjects to be taught, naming those which in their estimation would be most valuable to themselves and their employes. Such subjects could include arithmetic for merchants; cost accounting; food service; speaking for sales people; fashions; or any other subject dealing with a problem involving persons and customers.

Such classes would be conducted under the auspices of the local school board and paid for by the State and Federal departments of education. A qualified supervisor would be on the job full time to arrange classes and to consult with merchants on matters pertaining to the retail trade.

There would be no charge for enrollment in the classes. Class sessions would be conducted with extreme informality, with discussions open to all in attendance, so that matters of daily concern could be discussed and solved by exchange of experiences.

It was the concensus of those at the meeting that the services of a supervisor be requested and that definite plans be made for sponsoring a series of courses to begin in September.

profits goes to the United States Treasury as rent and service charge. Fifteen per cent is earmarked for charity and welfare work among needy government employes and the other 35 per cent is set aside for expansion.

There isn't a great deal that the association has learned about eating habits, but some of its conclusions are interesting. Whenever they serve cornbread, there's usually an argument between the Yankees and the southerners as to whether it should be made out of white or yellow cornmeal. Beans and prunes, which draw only scorn when set forth on a boarding house table, are still among the most popular dishes when people choose from the cafeteria steam table. Right now, the dietitians and menu makers are wondering how government clerks will go for raw spinach.

The Welfare Association is the biggest of the noon feeding institutions but it isn't the only one. The Government Printing Office, Bureau of Engraving, Department of Agriculture and Navy Department with their big payrolls have their own associations which operate their own cafeterias.

Youngsville Eighth Victim Of Unbeaten Warren High Nine

Warren High hung up its eighth consecutive diamond win yesterday afternoon at Youngsville with a 9-3 trampling of the Eagles.

The Red and White could get but four hits off Sedon, the winning pitcher, in five innings, and one in two frames off Bennett, while the Dragons got ten off Cordner. Seven errors didn't help the Youngsville cause, and the locals played virtually airtight ball afield.

Edmiston, Johnson and Sharp each hit a pair of singles, as did Clark and Schumaker for the losers.

TWO CHAMPIONS ARE SELECTED IN MIBS EVENT

Play in the National Marble Tournament was resumed here Monday evening after having been rained out for three consecutive nights last week. The tournaments last night were held at Beaty school, where champions for both Jefferson and South street schools were chosen.

Rudy Ahlgren, 10 years old, of 106 Redwood street, copped the Jefferson title, while Gerry Littlefield, also 10, of 109½ South Carver street, won the South street championship.

Interest in this tournament has been mounting steadily and it is expected that tonight's playoffs will be the peak in participation. At that time the tourneys for East street, Beaty, and the rural and parochial schools will be held.

The general public is invited to attend these tournaments and particularly the finals to be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the South Side playground, when the school champions will compete for the city championship.

Saturday's winners will represent Warren in the national playoffs to be held at Hershey during the week of June 15-19.

Results of Monday's playoffs are as follows:

Jefferson: Ring 1 winners—Rudy Ahlgren; ring 2, Henry Blick; ring 3, Clifford Maze, Champion, Rudy Ahlgren.

South street: Ring 1—Dick Olson; ring 2, Gerry Littlefield; ring 3, Leon Whitmore; ring 4, Jay Smith, Champion, Gerry Littlefield.

ARCHIBALD STAKES A CLAIM TO DIADEM

Washington, May 13 — (AP)—Joey Archibald, a little fighting man from Providence, R. I., laid claim to recognition today as the leading contender for the National Boxing Association's featherweight title held by Pete Scalzo in 40-odd states.

Archibald gained a split decision over Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, last night in a bout that served merely to further complicate the featherweight championship situation.

Jeffra, who lost a disputed decision to Archibald here two years ago but reversed the verdict in Baltimore in 1940, was recognized, prior to last night, as the featherweight titleholder in New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania and California.

Referee Eddie La Fond cast his vote for Jeffra last night, but the two judges, Bob Eller and James Sullivan, decided Archibald's aggressiveness in the late rounds entitled him to victory.

TWO ELK TEAMS ROLL IN STATE TOURNAMENT

Warren Elks were represented by two teams at the annual tournament of the Pennsylvania State Bowling Association in Pittsburgh over the weekend.

The No. 1 team had a nice chance to finish high in the standings, but the first game held them down considerably although they hit 949 and 923 in the last two for a total of 2670. Howard Potts' 580 was top block for the locals.

Glenn Grosch and Jim Scalise turned in 975 for the best doubles score for the locals, and Don Hogan's 518 was tops in the singles.

HARVEY & CAREY NEED ONLY ONE GAME FOR TITLE

With Barney Malone leading the way, the South Side Market bowlers of the Elks League last night took three straight games from Harvey & Carey outfit to come within a single game of the 1941 championship of the circuit.

The remaining necessary games of the seven-game series will be rolled Wednesday evening at the Elk drives, starting at 7 o'clock. While the South Siders need but one game to win, the Harvey & Carey crew must take four in a row to cop the season's championship.

Malone turned in the only double century games of the evening, 205 and 202. Not a man on the Harvey-Carey team could get over the 500 mark for three games.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

by Bill Rice

Jim Marker calls our attention to the following paragraphs from Havey Boyle's column in the Post-Gazette which will be of special interest to baseball fans who remember when Warren was tied up with the famous old Iron and Oil League. Honus Wagner was a member of the famous 1894 team, and the following has to do with both Honus and Connie Mack:

Somebody asked Wagner if he remembered anything about Connie as a player and manager of the Pirates, Mack having been the boss of the Buccos just before the start of the Flying Dutchman's career in the majors. Honus replied without a smile that he once drove 14 miles by horse and buggy to see Connie catch for Pittsburgh, and when quizzed regarding the actual combat, came up with a typical yarn without batting an eye. He said:

"Sure, I played against Connie. It wasn't in the big leagues. You see, I was playing for the Warren club of the Iron and Oil League, in 1894, and Mack brought his Pittsburgh team up to Warren for an exhibition game. Funny thing happened that day. We had the Pirates licked by seven or eight runs with two out in the ninth, when they filled the bases. The batter hit an easy roller to our second baseman. With a cinch play at first to end the game, the second sacker made a damn fool throw to the plate and everybody scored. They finally beat us out."

In his recital of the incident, Wagner didn't say whether the catcher —thinking the play would be made at first—had walked off the field, but he probably will add this detail with others the next time the matter comes up. Anyhow, his manner of recalling the game without benefit of memo or notes was of such a convincing manner as to admit of no Doubting Thomases.

"He's a grand old man and a wonderful tribute to baseball."

That was Frisch's reaction after listening to Mack during the breakfast and in their off-stage conversation.

The times at the Warren-Bradford-Kane track meet here last Saturday more than compare with those in district high school meets around Pittsburgh, or, as a matter of fact, those turned in by some of the leading colleges. We glanced down the Carnegie Tech-Geneva summaries and noted that the cinders flew much more furiously at Beaty Field that afternoon than in the Tartan Bowl. For instance, Bill Hillman hit 9.9 in the century, compared with the winning time of 10.4 in the college meet. Phil Larson's 23.5 two-twenty was the same as that of Pash, of Carnegie Tech, and when Bill Hillman shoved the shot 45 feet and three inches, he put it seven feet farther from the circle than did the winner at the Pittsburgh meet. Bove, of Bradford, pole vaulted six inches higher than Perez, of Tech, who won that event, with a push of 9 feet, 3 inches, and Jim Nelson, winner of the discus, chucked the platter nearly nine feet farther than the 108 feet chalked up at the Tech-Geneva fracas. Several of the local contests were close, too, which means that more than the winner beat the collegiate marks. For instance, in the century, Hillman was only half of the depth of his chest ahead of Bradford's Jack Nelson, and the Kane star beat out Seymour in the shot put by three inches.

Just as we go to press, we receive word that, although Doc Utley is the State Hospital staff's ablest angler, Bill Wilderspin and Johnny Lauffenburger are not far behind. The latter duo claim they at least return with their tackle, if not a mess of trout.

YEARS AGO IN SPORT

May 13, 1921—Lee Dunn stated today that managers of city league teams are rapidly lining up players and several complete rosters have already been turned in to him. It looks like another hot year for Warren's baseball fans.

May 13, 1931—The Pennsylvanians, who will represent this city in semi-pro baseball circles this year, are holding a benefit dance at the armory tonight. Marsh Kaltenbach and his band will provide the music.

Sports Round-up

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 13—Broadway newsreel crowds applaud every time Hank Greenberg is shown in an army uniform. . . . When and if Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth meet in that golf match, the old Bam probably will remind Ty of the time he struck out Cobb, Sam Crawford and Bobby Veach of the Tigers with the bases loaded. . . . Freddy Corcoran, who knows his golf onions, tabs Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., as a real dark horse in the National Open. This 20-year-old turned pro in the Greensboro Open and finished in the money. Last week he tied Clayton Heafner for first place in the Carolina Open, then won the play-off by firing a 64 to Heafner's 69.

Today's Guest Star

Roy Shudt, Troy Times-Record: "Does it strike you as odd how the big boys are bowing out in order? . . . First it was Babe Ruth, wearing No. 3. . . . Then Lou Gehrig, No. 4. . . . Last week it was Hank Greenberg, No. 5. . . . No. 6? . . .

The Sports Parade

Up in Boston they refer to Joe DiMaggio merely as Dom DiMaggio's brother. . . . Eddie Rickenbacker is writing friends he positively will attend the Indianapolis 500-mile race—and that's great news for all. . . . Pete Coscarart would be playing second base for Montreal if the Giants would let him get out of the league. . . Georgie Abrams, Ken Overlin's stablemate, will headline the Army-Navy boxing show Gene Tunney is staging Saturday at Jacksonville. . . . Larry MacPhail is so high on television he is toying with the idea of piping the World's Series into a half dozen Brooklyn theaters—if the Dodgers are in there, of course. . . . "The Sporting News" has issued its 1941 record book and it's a "must" on your sports reading program.

Today's True Story

Two weeks ago a friend long-distanced Hank Greenberg from Honolulu. . . . He said: "You've got to have more power if you're going to start hitting homers. . . . I'm sending you four cases of pineapples." . . . Last Tuesday the pineapples arrived . . . and on Wednesday Hank hit his first two homers of the year.

It All Happened Here

Johnny Riemenschneider, pitching for the Whitten, Ia., Highs, whiffed 21-batters in a seven-inning game to win, 16-0. Just to rub it in, he homered, doubled and singled. . . . And down in Mississippi, Perkinson Junior College made 14 runs, 14 hits and 14 errors while beating Wood Junior, which errors. . . . Don't look now, but 55 runs have been piled up against the Emory and Henry baseballers in their past two games. . . . And this paradox may interest you: The Arizona State Bulldogs have won the Border Conference football title two years in a row and both times met an eastern team in Sun Bowl games, but still haven't been able to lick the red ink. Even the college stationery is lettered in red.

Oh, Oh!

And now it's the fans of Idaho Falls, Idaho, who are wondering if Brooklyn is still in the league. . . One of the papers out there completely ignored the Brooks in the National League standings the other day, but put the Giants in twice.

One-Minute Interview

Umpire Larry Goetz: "I saw the Soose-Overlin fight. . . Never again will I ever need be ashamed of any decision I make on the ball field."

BOBO TAKES SPLIT NOD OVER DORAZIO

Pittsburgh, May 13—(AP)—Although penalized by the referee with the loss of three rounds for low blows, Harry Bobo, slugging Pittsburgh negro, gained the vote of two judges and a decision over Gus Dorazio, of Philadelphia, in a 10-round bout here last night.

Referee Red Robinson, who thought the Philadelphian won, gave Dorazio the second, fourth and fifth rounds for foul blows and Bobo the sixth for the same cause. The winner weighed 205 and the loser 191.

BILL LEE HALTS REDS AS YANKS BOW TO BOSOX

Associated Press Sports Writer

The heaviest pressure in the major leagues today is not on the first- place clubs—it is on the world champion Cincinnati Reds and the once invincible New York Yankees, both of whom are in fourth place in their respective leagues.

Their predicaments are strangely similar. Each has lost five of its past seven games. Each has had trouble rounding out its pitching staff. Each has been in a batting slump. Each will be at home today and tomorrow for a two-game series with the league leaders—the Brooklyn Dodgers at Cincinnati and the Cleveland Indians at New York.

The Reds were humiliated 12-1 yesterday by the Chicago Cubs and left staggering on the fringe of the second division.

In 11 games in the past two weeks the Reds never have made more than sevent hits and have averaged five. They were held to six yesterday by Big Bill Lee. No ball club, no matter how perfect its pitching or how flawless its fielding, can get anywhere with that kind of power.

The Reds, however, haven't even been getting consistent hurling from anyone except Bucky Walters, and their famous defense has shown signs of collapse. They made four errors yesterday and three the day before.

The Cardinals conquered Pittsburgh again yesterday, 6-2, with a 13-hit attack and the smooth, seven-hit pitching of Lon Warneke. It was the fourth victory without defeat for the veteran righthander.

The Yankees were whipped, 8-4, by the Boston Red Sox with old Lefty Grove spacing 10 hits for the 295th triumph of his career and his second of the season.

The Washington Senators subdued the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-1, in yesterday's only other major league encounter. Dutch Leonard pitched six-hit ball for his third straight success. Washington's eight timely hits included a homer by Jim Vernon.

BIG NAMES DUE TO QUIT MAJOR LEAGUES MAY 15

New York, May 13—(AP)—Some of baseball's longest and most colorful voyages are about to go on the rocks on May 15.

That is a barrier major league clubs can't pass with more than 25 active players, and to get to the limit managers have cast adrift such once-great players as Paul Waner, Dick Bartell, Wes Ferrel, Van Mungo, Tex Carleton and Earl Averill. It's also the date set for Jimmy Dykes' official retirement as a player, but the fiery White Sox manager hasn't done any playing to speak of since 1938.

Latest to go are Waner, Bartell and Mungo, whose combined term of major league service up to this season totals 39 years. The first two drew their outright release from Brooklyn and Detroit Sunday. At the same time Mungo was taken off the Dodgers' active list with indications that he soon will join Carleton at Montreal. Carleton was shipped down to the Brooklyn "farm" a couple of weeks ago, just about a year after he had pitched a no-hit game against the champion Cincinnati Reds.

The Boston Braves cast off Ferrell and Averill within the past week or two after taking them from American League clubs at the start never got to start this season, winding up at Minneapolis after arguing about the contract the Cubs offered him.

Some of them may catch on with other clubs, as Bump Hadley did with the Athletics after being cut loose by first the Yankees and then the Giants. Bill Terry, the Giants manager, already has shown interest in Bartell, who sparked his club to pennants in 1936 and 1937, and may take on as infield "insurance". If they don't land other jobs, the big leagues will miss them.

The United Automobile Workers (CIO) union agreed to postpone its strike against Hudson Motor Company until the company's directors could consider the demands. A Michigan labor conciliator said the board agreed to give its answer tomorrow afternoon.

The Dodge division of Chrysler Corporation reported it had laid off 12,000 workers last night because of a shortage of materials supplied by the New Haven Foundry Company, whose workers are on strike at New Haven, Mich.

The walkout of 1,700 AFL and CIO machinists, which forced the closing of 11 west coast shipyards and drydocks, was described by AFL President William Green as an "outlaw strike," in violation of a union-management agreement barring either strikes or lockouts during the defense emergency.

A conference was called at Washington today in an attempt to settle the strike of 900 AFL craftsmen at the Boston naval base, where work was halted on a $3,000,000 drydock.

when he said: "It is very possible x x x that convoys are not the answer after all. Perhaps we may have to develop a new defense to assure the arrival of our goods on the other side."

The statement was made by Knox in an extemporaneous speech after he had declared "we cannot half fight this battle. x x x we are committed to all the support (to Britain) necessary to produce a victory."

Only three possible courses await the United States, Knox declared—to face an aggressor with force, to become isolated from the rest of the world, or to surrender.

"We won't surrender," he assured, "all America is waiting for x x x is the word to go forward—we've made our choice."

Pepper, who has been demanding "affirmative action" by this country against the Axis, told reporters that "public opinion has reached the point where, if convoys are necessary to deliver the goods, the people will support them."

There was much cloakroom conversation, meanwhile, on President Roosevelt's decision to cancel his scheduled Wednesday night address before the heads of Latin American diplomatic missions. The White House announced late yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt would make a fire-side chat to the nation instead on May 27.

The Wednesday speech had been awaited with unusual interest on Capitol Hill, for many legislators believed that it might be the vehicle for announcements of paramount importance regarding future administration plans on British aid.

Pepper expressed regret at the postponment of the speech.

Incident Baffles Capital

fectly sane, and that he fled Germany for fear of his life.

Information has been reaching London for some time past, it was said, that relations in inner Nazi councils were strained, and Hess's flight was looked on as confirmation of such reports.

A likely reason for the breach, one informed source said, was disagreement over Germany's future military moves, but this makes for a strange denoument. Hess, it was explained, had been usually identified with the so-called Left Wing of Nazi officials who advocated a knock-out invasion of Britain, whereas the generals and Right Wing officials favored the Mediterranean and Middle East theatre of operations for the present.

If that caused the break, then Hess did the amazing thing of seeking refuge in a country whose conquest he had been urging. However, it was pointed out that England probably was the only place in the world where he would be out of Germany's reach.

Whatever the complicated background, the belief here was that British authorities were alive to the possibility of an audacious Nazi trap, or "plant," and would be exceedingly wary in making use of any information he might offer.

But should his good faith be established beyond a doubt, it was pointed out, the British would have a wealth of highly reliable and valuable information at their disposal.

There was some conjecture here as to why London had withheld news of Hess's capture almost three days. The general opinion was that Britain preferred to have the Nazis make the first announcement on the subject in the hope of a mistake that would have propaganda value later.

Overnight, RAF bombers driving the war home to Germany again smashed at the port city of Bremen and other points in the western Reich, while the luftwaffe eased its assaults on the British Isles.

On the African war front, the British reported two Imperial columns moving from opposite directions were closing the jaws of a huge pincers on 38,000 Italian troops said to be trapped at Amba Alaji, in northern Ethiopia.

The two British forces were reported only 20 miles apart.

In southern Ethiopia, the British reported they had occupied the last Italian stronghold in the Wardara district.

Hitler, meanwhile, stepped back into personal leadership of the National Socialist party, which Hess had directed as his deputy.

his wife, the former Leonie Debary Lyon, had left Roosevelt Field only a few hours previously on a six-hour hop to visit friends at Warren, O. Investigators said they apparently got off their westward course and were heading east when the crash came.

A skeleton of the fuselage about four feet square was all that remained of the black and green Beechcraft. The rest was strewn about the mountain top with golf bags and luggage. A toy truck the Brewsters were taking a friend's child fell clear of the debris without damage.

Searching parties traveled a dirt road to within 150 feet of the wreck and had to call in woodsmen with axes to cut a path through underbrush the remainder of the way. Eight state troopers guarded the scene during the night.

Coroner Straub said his investigation was complete and there would be no inquest. Civil aeronautics Inspector Allen Borden, traveling from New York by automobile, planned to inspect the wreckage today.

The bodies, meanwhile, were removed to Middleburg after official identification by Jack Bertel, Philadelphia private pilot and friend of the victims who said he had flown with Brewster only last week and knew his plane. Bertel said it appeared to him the New Yorker had made a pancake landing because only tips of the propeller were bent.

Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Miller Cut Rate and drug stores everywhere.

BY WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

I like to drive back from Florida each year, as it gives me an opportunity to stop off and meet the bridge players of various communities. My first stop after leaving Coral Gables was St. Petersburg, and I ran into quite a card party there. More than four thousand people had turned out to attend this annual event.

What caliber of bridge is played at this party? Who cares! There were some four thousand people having an enjoyable time, and that's what counts.

You know, a lot of the arguments at bridge are the fault of both partners. You will hear one partner jump on the other for making a bad bid and putting him in a slam contract which he didn't make, only to find out that if he had played the hand correctly the slam could have been made.

Declarer took two rounds of trumps, then tried the club finesse. When it lost to West's king, and the ace of spades was taken, he blamed North for going to six hearts.

But as the cards lie, six hearts can and should be made. North wins the opening lead and leads the four of hearts, won by the ten.

South leads the spade, and when West plays low, so does dummy. If East returns a club, South wins with the ace.

The declarer goes over to dummy twice with trumps to lead and ruff two more spades. The fall of the ace of spades sets up two good spares in dummy, on which South discards his two clubs.

Metzger-Wright 45th Anniversary Sale Starts Wednesday at 8:45

At 8:45 a. m. Wednesday, instead of the usual hour of 9 a. m., the doors of the Metzger-Wright Company will swing open for the annual celebration of its merchandizing birthday—this year the 45th.

"Every Year at Lilac Time" is the slogan adopted some years ago for this important merchandising event. It is probably safe to say that by this time hardly an individual in Warren county can think of lilacs without being reminded of the Metzger-Wright Anniversary Sale.

The lilac shade will predominate throughout the store and in the windows. The girls will wear lilac-colored smocks with the numerals "45" on the front; the display cards will have lilac-colored anniversary card toppers; lilacs will be used in profusion throughout the store to carry out its slogan. Over one hundred thousand dollars of specially purchased merchandise will be on sale for the first time at 8:45 Wednesday morning, besides the regular stock at anniversary prices.

Between two and three hundred birthday gifts valued at over $500 will be given away to customers during the sale. This feature will be called "the lilac hunt". Little lilac-colored, lilac-shaped tickets will be hidden in the merchandise throughout the store and all the customer will have to do is look for them and after finding one, present it to the stamp desk and receive the gift which corresponds to the number on the ticket. Nothing needs to be purchased. Thus the lilac hunt is open to all with the sole provision that no customer may receive more than one gift in any one day. Not even the co-workers will know where the little tickets are unless they find them accidently.

Another contest repeated from last year will be the lilac tournament. If you own or have access to a lilac bush, you are eligible. You are invited to bring a bouquet of lilacs to the lilac tournament headquarters, advertising office, fourth floor, where it will be entered in the contest. You may bring in as many entries as you wish either Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or before 3 p. m. Saturday. Disinterested judges will award prizes according to the following classificatoins:

1. The largest bunch of lilacs.
2. The most attractive arrangement of all purple lilacs.
3. The most attractive arrangement of purple with white lilacs.
4. The most attractive arrangement of purple lilacs with other flowers.

Prizes in each group will be $3 in cash and $5 in merchandise. You may bring your own vase or the store will provide one. Lilacs remain the property of the store.

A third feature will be the lilac marathon, a sales contest among co-workers, lasting throughout the sale, with special awards given to the winners.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

YESTERDAY: Martin and Eileen are married, and it seems to Eileen that this fact should be enough for all the rest of her life. But Martin seems only to be the exciting, thrilling person she had expected when under the stimulus of some great physical danger. They are in Hawaii on their honeymoon when Eileen asks him why this is so.

Chapter 24

Too Much Money

EILEEN only said, "I don't understand . . ."

Martin said sharply, his face and eyes still brilliant with excitement, "Because crazy chances are the only adventures I have left to me. My father and grandfather spent their lives in the biggest excitement of their times, the fight up through industry. My money's carefully canned in a sound trust, turn the handle and the income pours out. They wanted to save me trouble!

"My mother took one of the few ways a high-powered executive's wife had to keep from being swept under by his sheer drive. She went in for causes. She's copped 'em all off, suffrage, pacifism. I could trail 'round as her lieutenant, but I'm like the man in the musical comedy, I don't take orders well.

"I had a vague idea once about philanthropy, but Lewis Delevan is a professional, he handles my charities much better than I possibly could. My money's robbed me even of—"

He checked himself in the middle of his angry speech, suddenly changing to his usual self.

"Of even the chance of courting your wife," Eileen said bitterly.

He came over and kissed her neck. "Don't look for trouble," he said. "You said it, I didn't."

"But you think it's true."

He said composedly, "With anyone who has all my money it has to be true, Eileen. I learned by the time I was six years old that people thought of my money first and me afterwards. I don't bear malice; it's just a trait of human nature."

"With—everybody?" she almost whispered it.

"Come on, darling; time we dressed."

She was being walled out again. She wouldn't take it.

"You shan't believe it, you shan't. It isn't true. I'll show you it isn't true," she said passionately. She ran over to him, gripping his arm, almost shaking him in her intensity. But he only dropped another kiss on her hair. "You're a sweet kid," he said, and went to dress.

But she would show him. She would. Sooner or later she'd get it through his head that one person in the world liked him, not his money.

They were dining and dancing at somebody's sugar plantation, out under the sky in the moonlight to the inevitable Hawaiian guitars. Friends of Martin's, of course. She dressed with special care. Martin mustn't be ashamed of the little outsider he'd found on a sidewalk outside a flower shop.

She really liked her hostess, unexpectedly; a gentle dark girl, friendly and half-asleep, who didn't exclaim over her or say how thrilled she was about the marriage. The tropical night, the stars on the veranda after dinner, the whisper of the lone guitar off somewhere, Martin's shoulder, below her, white in his mess jacket where he lounged on the steps, almost touching her knee, made her feel safe, languish, relaxed at last.

And then she heard the crackling swish of wheels on gravel, and her hostess' soft lazy voice saying, "Surprise, everybody! Look what got in on this afternoon's boat!"

Bad Penny

CAROLINE DEMPSTER. Of course, Caroline . . . Well, she and not Caroline was married to Martin. Nothing Caroline could do. And yet the old antagonism, and the old fear, crept through her under her flowered ninon frock, prickling up to the roots of her freshly done curls.

Caroline's cool angelic fairness hadn't changed. She ran up the steps in a swirl of white lace skirts, her curve of fair hair dancing against her narrow shoulders, laughing, kissing, greeting. Making a particular fuss over Eileen.

Presently she was starting something, as usual. Dragging them all off to the Hawaiian Village—"The only thing I really came down here for!"

The hostess and host were no match for her. Presently the party were all at tables under colored lights. The place was roofless, lifted against the sky, with palms at the corners. The steel guitars whined swing instead of having Benny Goodman play it. That was all the difference between here and New York.

These people of Martin's carried their own world around with them and never got outside it. She was up and dancing with Roly. She felt safer with the Perrines than anyone else.

"Shame we haven't got the Grants, and that Duncan man, the earnest woman, you know," Roly said, grinning. "If we had, we'd have a reunion. You know, if we had some Fiji. Poor Grant, you had him going. Bolted for Spain, somebody said, when Martin beat him to it."

She and Robina were at the table alone for the moment, when the girl, just enough in the wind to be frank, said, "I never did like Caroline much, Eileen, but she's being a sport. About you and Martin, I mean. Everybody's had them married for a year. Even Winchell, you know he scarcely ever flops. When they got up the skiing party we thought it was an announcement. . . . I like you better," Robina said in her flat child's voice, "but—d'you know? Good joke on Caroline."

Caroline was apparently taking the joke well. As the party streamed its reluctant way home she said, "You and I must get together. Childhood friend of bridegroom, you know. Hasn't lost a Martin but gained an Eileen, all that. I'm all tied up ahead already for ages. . . . Breakfast, my hotel tomorrow morning round nine thirty?"

Eilen said, "Swell!" Not that she wanted to.

Martin only said when she told him next morning where she was bound, "Be back by eleven, we're swimming with the Delands. Meet you on the beach."

She nodded, one white-shod foot on the car step, smiling at him through the rosy transparent brim of her big sun hat, "Word of honor!" (And sooner than that, if she could manage!)

"Good kid. You always do keep your word."

And she always must. Because to her knowledge of Martin, built up watchfully piece by piece, she had added along with his pleasure in wild chances his sense of the importance of a given word. And she clung to that. Because if he had that value he must have others. He must be the man she had always wanted, the man she had known at sight.

Caroline, like a fair tall page in her white slacks, ran calling out down the hotel steps, and carried her off, talking and laughing, to a group of little outdoor tables under an awning.

"It's too wonderful out here to drag you into the dining room," she said. "And we're more alone, at this hour."

Bitter Attack

THEY talked conventionalities over the coffee and pineapple slices. Neither girl actually ate. Presently a silence fell which Eileen did not break. Caroline's face quieted to a pleasant hardness. She said, across the cleared table, "And now, let's talk business." Her voice was neutral, amiable, like a saleswoman's.

"I don't know of any there is to discuss."

"Martin's my business. He has been since we went to kindergarten. He practically jilted me, when he went haywire and married you on one of those fool playboy impulses. I know Martin right through. I'm seeing him through this. I hope you'll save us both time and nervous strain by talking straight. What are your plans about the marriage?"

Eileen stood up and said, "I have none except to make my husband as good a wife as I know how. Good-bye."

Caroline said, "Sit down or I'll shriek the place down. Do you want some more stuff in the papers? I'll spoil things, you dumbbell. Sit down!"

For Martin's sake she mustn't make a scene, et it over and go. She sat down.

"You can't plan to waste much time on Martin," Caroline pursued quietly, "you must want to get back to that Greek florist who's your sweetie."

Eileen said, "If you know Aristides liked me, you must know too that I didn't like him."

"That's very thin, Eileen. Martin took a chance with you, and lost. You began, being bright, by picking up what I said, that a woman has a chance to court a man and have him take it, just like the other way about. I'd heard Edith Willesdon say it a dozen times, of course. Martin fell for it. Just one more crazy sporting proposition to amuse the poor little rich boy. He's a pushover for them, however you knew it. And dumb luck, and being small enough to be able to, made you take the only other line he was a pushover for. You took the kind of risk he takes himself. And I, all knocked out, the fool, weeping into a tree instead of registering heroism! Well, skip that. Didn't mean to get excited. Here's the nub. You want out, with enough to make your time worth while. I want you out, so does Martin. So for goodness sake let's cut the conventional line and get at it."

Eileen tried to speak, but Caroline interrupted her. "You're getting me wrong. I'm not blaming you. Any hard-up girl with wits would have done what you did—with a rake-off out of nine millions that means a night-club spot, and prosperity for life with your good-looking Greek boy. But I don't want to wait. You might consider my side of it; it's simply rotten publicity under the circumstances. You might be decent and not stall any longer."

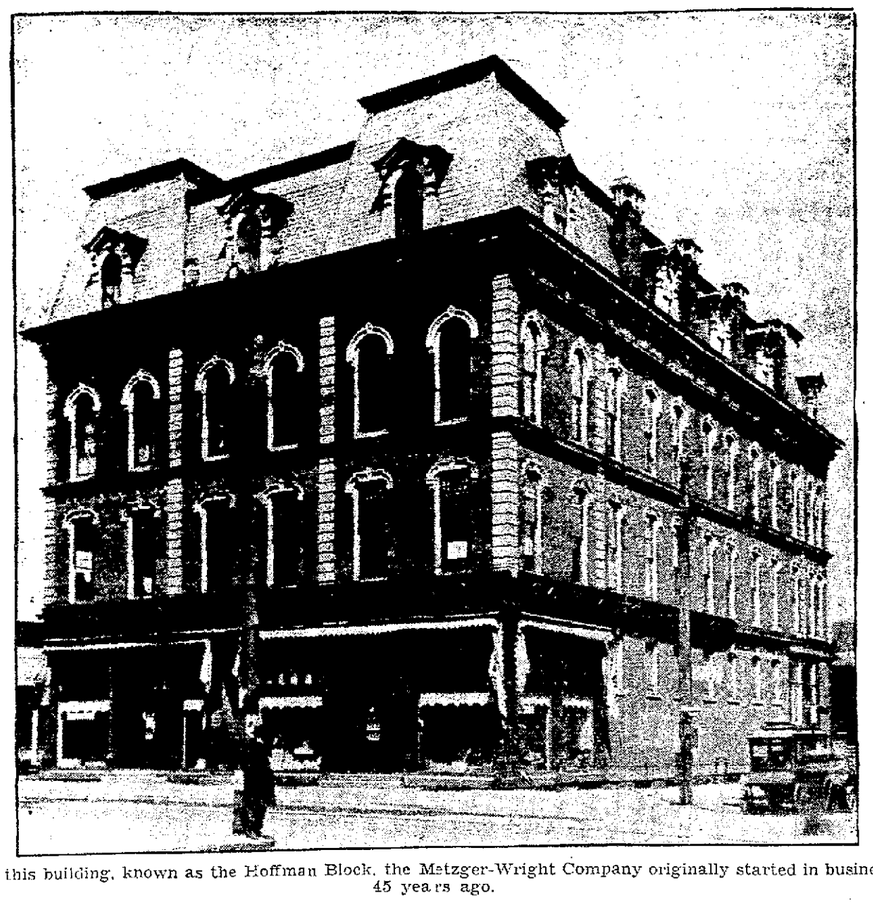

"Apparently nothing can make you believe I'm in love with Martin and want to stay married to him, so I won't try," Eileen said. "But the answer is No, and never dare to speak to me about it again. Now scream if you like." Eileen said, smiling as conventionally as Caroline had. "Thanks for the party."

But it took all she had to thread her way through the tables, down and out to where the car waited.

Eager Readers Take Over Job of Promoting Popular Cooking School

Good news travels fast.

The old adage went into reverse after the opening announcement of the Times-Mirror Cooking School, for telephones and personal-appearance visitors are spreading the welcome tidings of the Times-Mirror's approaching hospitality days in the Y. W. C. A. activities building. It looks as though this paper can relax and let the eager readers promote the popular school, coming May 20, 21, 22 and 23.

"Of course I'm going to the Cooking School. I don't intend to miss a single session."

That's what neighbors and friends are saying, as they plan to travel in pairs and groups to the Cooking School party, where all women will share the common bond of interest in the world's most necessary job, homemaking.

The Times-Mirror recognizes that this full-time job of homemaking prevents the average woman from keeping up with the rapid changes and continual improvements which are being made in her own line. And yet, like other craftsmen, the woman occupied with this all-important job is keenly interested in these developments, particularly when she has an opportunity to ask questions and to inspect new equipment in actual operation.

This modern Cooking School takes labor saving devices out of the show room, and puts them to work in a scientifically-planned kitchen, directly under the watching eyes of the audience. Each item of simplified equipment, each small product and accessory, must graduate from the "written guarantee" class and prove itself in practical performance.

Presiding over the immaculate demonstration kitchen in the Y. W. C. A. activities building will be the Times-Mirror's culinary expert, Mrs. Katherine Baldridge, who devotes her entire time to general homemaking research, as well as to the study of food products and cookery.

Believing that "action speaks louder than sales talks," this alert lecturer crams plenty of action into her entertaining programs, which click along with systematic skill through measuring, mixing, broiling, baking, French frying—all seasoned with friendly counsel and wise tips on saving steps, time and tempers.

Tempting dishes will be seen in each step of preparation, and these demonstration treats will be given away to proud, homeward-bound pupils, as well as free recipe sheets. Guests of the Times-Mirror will reap a harvest of daily gifts and unheralded surprises.

Sign up a Cooking School party today and plan to join your neighbors in the Y. W. C. A. activities building on all four days of the fruitful and interesting school, May 20, 21, 22 and 23 at 2 p. m.

Self-Medication Is Dangerous

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHWEIGER
of The Mullen Drug Co.

In no disease are the dangers of self medication more serious than when appendicitis threatens. A pain in the pit of the stomach, temperature and nausea call for a physician's diagnosis in no uncertain terms.

The use of laxatives to alleviate abdominal distress has proved fatal over and over again, bringing up the score against appendicitis in an alarming manner.

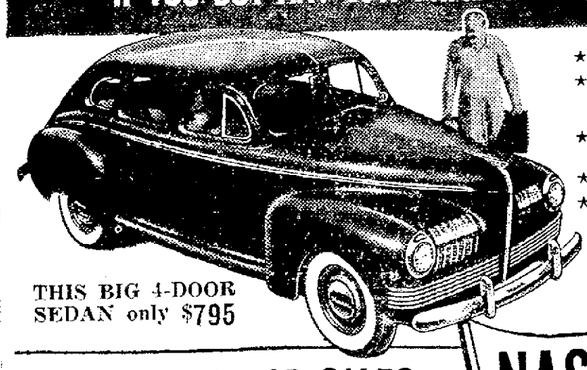

Properly diagnosed, promptly treated, appendicitis is no serious menace. The operation is simple, the after effects negligible.

All medication must be ordered by a physician and compounded by a skilled druggist.

The United Automobile Workers (CIO) union agreed to postpone its strike against Hudson Motor Company until the company's directors could consider the demands. A Michigan labor conciliator said the board agreed to give its answer tomorrow afternoon.

The Dodge division of Chrysler Corporation reported it had laid off 12,000 workers last night because of a shortage of materials supplied by the New Haven Foundry Company, whose workers are on strike at New Haven, Mich.

The walkout of 1,700 AFL and CIO machinists, which forced the closing of 11 west coast shipyards and drydocks, was described by AFL President William Green as an "outlaw strike," in violation of a union-management agreement barring either strikes or lockouts during the defense emergency.

A conference was called at Washington today in an attempt to settle the strike of 900 AFL craftsmen at the Boston naval base, where work was halted on a $3,000,000 drydock.

when he said: "It is very possible x x x that convoys are not the answer after all. Perhaps we may have to develop a new defense to assure the arrival of our goods on the other side."

The statement was made by Knox in an extemporaneous speech after he had declared "we cannot half fight this battle. x x x we are committed to all the support (to Britain) necessary to produce a victory."

Only three possible courses await the United States, Knox declared—to face an aggressor with force, to become isolated from the rest of the world, or to surrender.

"We won't surrender," he assured, "all America is waiting for x x x is the word to go forward—we've made our choice."

Pepper, who has been demanding "affirmative action" by this country against the Axis, told reporters that "public opinion has reached the point where, if convoys are necessary to deliver the goods, the people will support them."

There was much cloakroom conversation, meanwhile, on President Roosevelt's decision to cancel his scheduled Wednesday night address before the heads of Latin American diplomatic missions. The White House announced late yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt would make a fire-side chat to the nation instead on May 27.

The Wednesday speech had been awaited with unusual interest on Capitol Hill, for many legislators believed that it might be the vehicle for announcements of paramount importance regarding future administration plans on British aid.

Pepper expressed regret at the postponment of the speech.

fectly sane, and that he fled Germany for fear of his life.

Information has been reaching London for some time past, it was said, that relations in inner Nazi councils were strained, and Hess's flight was looked on as confirmation of such reports.

A likely reason for the breach, one informed source said, was disagreement over Germany's future military moves, but this makes for a strange denoument. Hess, it was explained, had been usually identified with the so-called Left Wing of Nazi officials who advocated a knock-out invasion of Britain, whereas the generals and Right Wing officials favored the Mediterranean and Middle East theatre of operations for the present.

If that caused the break, then Hess did the amazing thing of seeking refuge in a country whose conquest he had been urging. However, it was pointed out that England probably was the only place in the world where he would be out of Germany's reach.

Whatever the complicated background, the belief here was that British authorities were alive to the possibility of an audacious Nazi trap, or "plant," and would be exceedingly wary in making use of any information he might offer.

But should his good faith be established beyond a doubt, it was pointed out, the British would have a wealth of highly reliable and valuable information at their disposal.

There was some conjecture here as to why London had withheld news of Hess's capture almost three days. The general opinion was that Britain preferred to have the Nazis make the first announcement on the subject in the hope of a mistake that would have propaganda value later.

Overnight, RAF bombers driving the war home to Germany again smashed at the port city of Bremen and other points in the western Reich, while the luftwaffe eased its assaults on the British Isles.

Other RAF targets included Mannheim, in the German Rhineland, Cologne, Koblenz, Ostend and Dunkerque.

On the African war front, the British reported two Imperial columns moving from opposite directions were closing the jaws of a huge pincers on 38,000 Italian troops said to be trapped at Amba Alaji, in northern Ethiopia.

The two British forces were reported only 20 miles apart.

In southern Ethiopia, the British reported they had occupied the last Italian stronghold in the Wardara district.

Hitler, meanwhile, stepped back into personal leadership of the National Socialist party, which Hess had directed as his deputy.

Airmail Pilot Locates Wreck of Lost Plane

his wife, the former Leonie Debary Lyon, had left Roosevelt Field only a few hours previously on a six-hour hop to visit friends at Warren, O. Investigators said they apparently got off their westward course and were heading east when the crash came.

A skeleton of the fuselage about four feet square was all that remained of the black and green Beechcraft. The rest was strewn about the mountain top with golf bags and luggage. A toy truck the Brewsters were taking a friend's child fell clear of the debris without damage.

Searching parties traveled a dirt road to within 150 feet of the wreck and had to call in woodsmen with axes to cut a path through underbrush the remainder of the way. Eight state troopers guarded the scene during the night.

Coroner Straub said his investigation was complete and there would be no inquest. Civil aeronautics Inspector Allen Borden, traveling from New York by automobile, planned to inspect the wreckage today.

The bodies, meanwhile, were removed to Middleburg after official identification by Jack Bertel, Philadelphia private pilot and friend of the victims who said he had flown with Brewster only last week and knew his plane. Bertel said it appeared to him the New Yorker had made a pancake landing because only tips of the propeller were bent.

Milk Mixture for Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Miller Cut Rate and drug stores everywhere.

BY WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

I like to drive back from Florida each year, as it gives me an opportunity to stop off and meet the bridge players of various communities. My first stop after leaving Coral Gables was St. Petersburg, and I ran into quite a card party there. More than four thousand people had turned out to attend this annnual event.

What caliber of bridge is played at this party? Who cares! There were some four thousand people having an enjoyable time, and that's what counts.

You know, a lot of the arguments at bridge are the fault of both partners. You will hear one partner jump on the other for making a bad bid and putting him in a slam contract which he didn't make, only to find out that if he had played the hand correctly the slam could have been made.

Declarer took two rounds of trumps, then tried the club finesse. When it lost to West's king, and the ace of spades was taken, he blamed North for going to six hearts.

But as the cards lie, six hearts can and should be made. North wins the opening lead and leads the four of hearts, won by the ten.

South leads the spade, and when West plays low, so does dummy. If East returns a club, South wins with the ace.

The declarer goes over to dummy twice with trumps to lead and ruff two more spades. The fall of the ace of spades sets up two good spares in dummy, on which South discards his two clubs.

Metzger-Wright 45th Anniversary Sale Starts Wednesday at 8:45

At 8:45 a. m. Wednesday, instead of the usual hour of 9 a. m., the doors of the Metzger-Wright Company will swing open for the annual celebration of its merchandizing birthday—this year the 45th.

"Every Year at Lilac Time" is the slogan adopted some years ago for this important merchandising event. It is probably safe to say that by this time hardly an individual in Warren county can think of lilacs without being reminded of the Metzger-Wright Anniversary Sale.

The lilac shade will predominate throughout the store and in the windows. The girls will wear lilac-colored smocks with the numerals "45" on the front; the display cards will have lilac-colored anniversary card toppers; lilacs will be used in profusion throughout the store to carry out its slogan. Over one hundred thousand dollars of specially purchased merchandise will be on sale for the first time at 8:45 Wednesday morning, besides the regular stock at anniversary prices.

Between two and three hundred birthday gifts valued at over $500 will be given away to customers during the sale. This feature will be called "the lilac hunt". Little lilac-colored, lilac-shaped tickets will be hidden in the merchandise throughout the store and all the customer will have to do is look for them and after finding one, present it to the stamp dask and receive the gift which corresponds to the number on the ticket. Nothing needs to be purchased. Thus the lilac hunt is open to all with the sole provision that no customer may receive more than one gift in any one day. Not even the co-workers will know where the little tickets are unless they find them accidently.

Another contest repeated from last year will be the lilac tournament. If you own or have access to a lilac bush, you are eligible. You are invited to bring a bouquet of lilacs to the lilac tournament headquarters, advertising office, fourth floor, where it will be entered in the contest. You may bring in as many entries as you wish either Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or before 3 p. m. Saturday. Disinterested judges will award prizes according to the following classificatoins:

1. The largest bunch of lilacs.
2. The most attractive arrangement of all purple lilacs.
3. The most attractive arrangement of purple with white lilacs.
4. The most attractive arrangement of purple lilacs with other flowers.

Prizes in each group will be $3 in cash and $5 in merchandise. You may bring your own vase or the store will provide one. Lilacs remain the property of the store.

A third feature will be the lilac marathon, a sales contest among co-workers, lasting throughout the sale, with special awards given to the winners.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

YESTERDAY: Martin and Eileen are married, and it seems to Eileen that this fact should be enough for all the rest of her life. But Martin seems only to be the exciting, thrilling person she had expected when under the stimulus of some great physical danger. They are in Hawaii on their honeymoon when Eileen asks him why this is so.

Chapter 24

Too Much Money

EILEEN only said, "I don't understand . . ."

Martin said sharply, his face and eyes still brilliant with excitement, "Because crazy chances are the only adventures I have left to me. My father and grandfather spent their lives in the biggest excitement of their times, the fight up through industry. My money's carefully canned in a sound trust, turn the handle and the income pours out. They wanted to save me trouble!

"My mother took one of the few ways a high-powered executive's wife had to keep from being swept under by his sheer drive. She went in for causes. She's copped 'em all off, suffrage, pacifism. I could trai' round as her lieutenant, but I'm like the man in the musical comedy, I don't take orders well.

"I had a vague idea once about philanthropy, but Lewis Delevan is a professional, he handles my charities much better than I possibly could. My money's robbed me even of—"

He checked himself in the middle of his angry speech, suddenly changing to his usual self.

"Of even the chance of courting your wife," Eileen said bitterly.

He came over and kissed her neck. "Don't look for trouble," he said. "You said it, I didn't."

"But you think it's true."

He said composedly, "With anyone who has all my money it has to be true, Eileen. I learned by the time I was six years old that people thought of my money first and me afterwards. I don't bear malice; it's just a trait of human nature."

"With—everybody?" she almost whispered it.

"Come on, darling: time we dressed."

She was being walled out again. She wouldn't take it.

"You shan't believe it, you shan't. It isn't true. I'll show you it isn't true," she said passionately. She ran over to him, gripping his arm, almost shaking him in her intensity. But he only dropped another kiss on her hair. "You're a sweet kid," he said, and went to dress.

But she would show him. She would. Sooner or later she'd get it through his head that one person in the world liked him, not his money.

They were dining and dancing at somebody's sugar plantation, out under the sky in the moonlight to the inevitable Hawaiian guitars. Friends of Martin's, of course. She dressed with special care. Martin mustn't be ashamed of the little outsider he'd found on a sidewalk outside a flower shop.

She really liked her hostess, unexpectedly; a gentle dark girl, friendly and half-asleep, who didn't exclaim over her or say how thrilled she was about the marriage. The tropical night, the stars on the veranda after dinner, the whisper of the lone guitar off somewhere, Martin's shoulder, below her, white in his mess jacket where he lounged on the steps, almost touching her knee, made her feel safe, languish, relaxed at last.

And then she heard the crackling swish of wheels on gravel, and her hostess' soft lazy voice saying, "Surprise, everybody! Look what got in on this afternoon's boat!"

Bad Penny

CAROLINE DEMPSTER. Of course. Caroline . . . Well, she and not Caroline was married to Martin. Nothing Caroline could do. And yet the old antagonism, and the old fear, crept through her under her flowered ninon frock, prickling up to the roots of her freshly done curls.

Caroline's cool angelic fairness hadn't changed. She ran up the steps in a swirl of white lace skirts, her curve of fair hair dancing against her narrow shoulders, laughing, kissing, greeting. Making a particular fuss over Eileen.

Presently she was starting something, as usual. Dragging them all off to the Hawaiian Village—"The only thing I really came down here for!"

The hostess and host were no match for her. Presently the party were all at tables under colored lights. The place was roofless, netted against the sky, with palms at the corners. The steel guitars whined swing instead of having Benny Goodman play it. That was all the difference between here and New York.

These people of Martin's carried their own world around with them and never got outside it. She was up and dancing with Roly. She felt safer with the Perrines than anyone else.

"Shame we haven't got the Grants, and that Delevan man, the earnest worker, you know," Roly said, grinning. "If we had, we'd have a reunion. You know, if we had some ham. Poor Grant, you had him going. Bolted for Spain, somebody said, when Martin beat him to it."

She and Robina were at the table alone for the moment, when the girl, just enough in the wind to be frank, said, "I never did like Caroline much, Eileen, but she's being a sport. About you and Martin, I mean. Everybody's had them married for a year. Even Winchell, you know he scarcely ever flops. When they got up the skiing party we thought it was an announcement. . . . I like you better," Robina said in her flat child's voice, "but—d'you know? Good joke on Caroline."

Caroline was apparently taking the joke well. As the party streamed its reluctant way home she said, "You and I must get together. Childhood friend of bridegroom, you know. Hasn't lost a Martin but gained an Eileen, all that. I'm all tied up ahead already for ages. . . . Breakfast, my hotel tomorrow morning round nine thirty?"

Eilen said, "Swell!" Not that she wanted to.

Martin only said when she told him next morning where she was bound, "Be back by eleven, we're swimming with the Delands. Meet you on the beach."

She nodded, one white-shod foot on the car step, smiling at him through the rosy transparent brim or her big sun hat. "Word of honor!" (And sooner than that, if she could manage!)

"Good kid. You always do keep your word."

And she always must. Because to her knowledge of Martin, built up watchfully piece by piece, she had added along with his pleasure in wild chances his sense of the importance of a given word. And she clung to that. Because if he had that value he must have others. He must be the man she had always wanted, the man she had known at sight.

Caroline, like a fair tall page in her white slacks, ran calling out down the hotel steps, and carried her off, talking and laughing, to a group of little outdoor tables under an awning.

"It's too wonderful out here to drag you into the dining room," she said. "And we're more alone, at this hour."

Bitter Attack

THEY talked conventionalities over the coffee and pineapple slices. Neither girl actually ate. Presently a silence fell which Eileen did not break. Caroline's face quieted to a pleasant hardness. She said, across the cleared table, "And now, let's talk business." Her voice was neutral, amiable, like a saleswoman's.

"I don't know of any there is to discuss."

"Martin's my business. He has been since we went to kindergarten. He practically jilted me, when he went haywire and married you on one of those fool playboy impulses. I know Martin right through. I'm seeing him through this. I hope you'll save us both time and nervous strain by talking straight. What are your plans about the marriage?"

Eileen stood up and said, "I have none except to make my husband as good a wife as I know how. Good-bye."

Caroline said, "Sit down or I'll shriek the place down. Do you want some more stuff in the papers? I'll spoil things, you dumbbell. Sit down!"

For Martin's sake she mustn't make a scene. et it over and go. She sat down.

"You can't plan to waste much time on Martin," Caroline pursued quietly, "you must want to get back to that Greek florist who's your sweetie."

Eileen said, "If you know Aristides liked me, you must know too that I didn't like him."

"That's very thin, Eileen. Martin took a chance with you, and lost. You began, being bright, by picking up what I said, that a woman has a chance to court a man and have him take it, just like the other way about. I'd heard Edith Willesdon say it a dozen times, of course. Martin fell for it. Just one more crazy sporting proposition to amuse the poor little rich boy. He's a pushover for them, however you knew it. And dumb luck, and being small enough to be able to, made you take the only other line he was a pushover for. You took the kind of risk he takes himself. And I, all knocked out, the fool, weeping into a tree instead of registering heroism! Well, skip that. Didn't mean to get excited. Here's the nub. You want out, with enough to make your time worth while. I want you out, so does Martin. So for goodness sake let's cut the conventional line and get at it."

Eileen tried to speak, but Caroline interrupted her. "You're getting me wrong. I'm not blaming you. Any hard-up girl with wits would have done what you did—with a rake-off out of nine millions that means a night-club spot, and prosperity for life with your good-looking Greek boy. But I don't want to wait. You might consider my side of it; it's simply rotten publicity under the circumstances. You might be decent and not stall any longer."

"Apparently nothing can make you believe I'm in love with Martin and want to stay married to him, so I won't try," Eileen said. "But the answer is No, and never dare to speak to me about it again. Now scream if you like," Eileen said, smiling as conventionally as Caroline had. "Thanks for the party."

But it took all she had to thread her way through the tables, down and out to where the car waited.

Eager Readers Take Over Job of Promoting Popular Cooking School

Good news travels fast.

The old adage went into reverse after the opening announcement of the Times-Mirror Cooking School, for telephones and personal-appearance visitors are spreading the welcome tidings of the Times-Mirror's approaching hospitality days in the Y. W. C. A. activities building. It looks as though this paper can relax and let the eager readers promote the popular school, coming May 20, 21, 22 and 23.

"Of course I'm going to the Cooking School. I don't intend to miss a single session."

That's what neighbors and friends are saying, as they plan to travel in pairs and groups to the Cooking School party, where all women will share the common bond of interest in the world's most necessary job, homemaking.

The Times-Mirror recognizes that this full-time job of homemaking prevents the average woman from keeping up with the rapid changes and continual improvements which are being made in her own line. And yet, like other craftsmen, the woman occupied with this all-important job is keenly interested in these developments, particularly when she has an opportunity to ask questions and to inspect new equipment in actual operation.

This modern Cooking School takes labor saving devices out of the show room, and puts them to work in a scientifically-planned kitchen, directly under the watching eyes of the audience. Each item of simplified equipment, each small product and accessory, must graduate from the "written guarantee" class and prove itself in practical performance.

Presiding over the immaculate demonstration kitchen in the Y. W. C. A. activities building will be the Times-Mirror's culinary expert, Mrs. Katherine Baldridge, who devotes her entire time to general homemaking research, as well as to the study of food products and cookery.

Believing that "action speaks louder than sales talks," this alert lecturer crams plenty of action into her entertaining programs, which click along with systematic skill through measuring, mixing, broiling, baking, French frying—all seasoned with friendly counsel and wise tips on saving steps, time and tempers.

Tempting dishes will be seen in each step of preparation, and these demonstration treats will be given away to proud, homeward-bound pupils, as well as free recipe sheets. Guests of the Times-Mirror will reap a harvest of daily gifts and unheralded surprises.

Sign up a Cooking School party today and plan to join your neighbors in the Y. W. C. A. activities building on all four days of the fruitful and interesting school, May 20, 21, 22 and 23 at 2 p. m.

Self-Medication Is Dangerous

of The Mullen Drug Co.

In no disease are the dangers of self medication more serious than when appendicitis threatens. A pain in the pit of the stomach, temperature and nausea call for a physician's diagnosis in no uncertain terms.

The use of laxatives to alleviate abdominal distress has proved fatal over and over again, bringing up the score against appendicitis in an alarming manner.

Properly diagnosed, promptly treated, appendicitis is no serious menace. The operation is simple, the after effects negligible.

All medication must be ordered by a physician and compounded by a skilled druggist.
